Notorious Gossip

"Will you guarantee the upholstery of this car?" demanded the prospective purchaser.
"Madam," replied the salesman, with dignity, "the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Professor (in the middle of a joke): "Have I ever told the class this one before?"
Class (in a chorus): "Yes."
Professor (proceeding): "Good! You will probably understand it this time."

"Can any little boy," asked the new teacher, "tell me the difference between a lake and an ocean?"
"I can," replied Edward, whose wisdom had been learned from experience. "Lakes are much pleasanter to swallow when you fall in."

She began to suspect that the Great White Father in Washington had failed her. Her cheque for the month hadn't come through, and she could think of just one thing to do about it. She took her pen in hand and appealed to her social worker to let the Governor, and the President, know about her plight. "My man's overcoat," she informed them, "is a disgrace to the Democratic Party. And his shoes are no better."

The middle-aged teacher was endeavouring to push the sale of the class photograph.

"Now children," she said, "just imagine how you will enjoy looking at this photograph when you grow up. As you look at it you will say to yourself, 'Here's Mary. She's a nurse and there's Willie. He's a barber, and...'"

Just then a pert little girl of vivid imagination blurted out, "And there's teacher. She's dead!"

A well-known musician was staying in the village, and one evening while taking a walk fell in with some rustics coming away from choir practice. He asked one of them what music they had been practising.

"Handel," he was told.
"But I should have thought you'd find Handel rather difficult," the musician remarked.
"No, not very, sir," one of the villagers replied. "You see we alter his work."

Garge, the farmer's son, entered the outfitter's shop and asked to see some caps. Several were tried on, but none apparently met his requirements. Finally, after the shopman had placed the last of his stock on the counter, he said in desperation:
"Now, sir, what exactly is the kind you require?"
Garge scratched his head, puzzled.
"Well," he said, "I've just got a new motor-bike, so I want a cap with a peak at the back."

SILVER WEDDING

Old Hong Kong Residents Celebrate

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18.
Two former residents of Hong Kong who were married out here 25 years ago, celebrated their Silver Jubilee on Oct. 15. The following notice appeared in the "London Times."

POWELL: TIMINS.—On Oct. 15, 1910, at St. Peter's Church, Kowloon, Hong Kong, by the Rev. H. O. Spink, Capt. Dacre Hamilton Powell, 105th Maharatta Light Infantry, third son of the Ven. the Archbishop of Cork and Mrs. D. H. Powell, St. Mary's Rectory, Cork, Ireland, to Violet Charlotte Edith, fourth daughter of H. C. A. Timins, and the late Mrs. Timins, Pebble Hill House, Limerick.

TRIAL OF LORD DE CLIFFORD

Lord Chancellor's Letter To Peers

Viscount Hailsham, the Lord Chancellor, issued the following letter to members of the House of Lords with reference to the case of Lord de Clifford, whose name appears in the list of persons for trial at the Old Bailey sessions which opened:

My Lord.—Your lordship may have read in the public Press statements to the effect that a member of your lordship's House is likely to be tried on a charge of manslaughter by this House, and your lordship may also have received circulars from various enterprising firms with regard to the attire which it is necessary for a Peer to wear on such an occasion. In these circumstances, I have thought that it might be convenient to your lordship to be informed of what the actual position really is. It is a fact that Lord de Clifford, a member of your lordship's House, has been committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter, and that such a charge against a Peer of Parliament can only be tried by this House, when this House is in Session.

ROBES TO BE WORN

1. It is the undoubted right and privilege of every member of your lordship's House to attend at such a trial as a judge both of the law and of the facts, just as in former times it was the custom for the non-legal members of the House to take part in the hearing of civil appeals.
2. Arrangements will be made to ensure the attendance of the judicial members of your lordship's House at the trial. It will, therefore, not be necessary for any other member of the House to attend unless he desires so to do.
3. Any Peer who takes part in the trial must, of course, attend throughout the hearing, and must wear his Peer's robes and cocked hat. The usual hours for Judicial Sittings of this House are from 10.30 in the morning till 3.45 in the evening, with an interval of half an hour for lunch.
4. It will probably be arranged that space should be reserved for such members of your lordship's House as wish to witness the trial but not to take part in it.

DATE OF THE TRIAL

6. The date of the trial must be a matter for decision by the House itself, and I cannot, therefore, give your lordship any information as yet upon that matter.
7. It will be my duty later-on, when the House has assembled, to send such further communication, with details of the procedure, as the House may prescribe. I have, however, thought it might be convenient to your lordship to have this preliminary explanation of the procedure and circulars to which my attention has been drawn.
I am, My Lord,
Your obedient Servant,
HAILSHAM, C.
House of Lords,
October 14th, 1935.

Lord de Clifford was committed for trial by the Kingston-on-Thames magistrates on charges of manslaughter and dangerous driving arising out of a car crash on the Kingston by-pass on Aug. 15, when Douglas George Hopkins, of Finchley, lost his life. It is understood that the indictment will be reported from the Old Bailey to the House of Lords this week.

ROYAL

The World's Finest Tires

Extra mileage, extra safety and extra value—you could not ask more of a tire than these. They represent all that a tire can give—and account for the leadership of ROYALS in every corner of the world.

- MILEAGE... Think of how tempered steel compares with ordinary steel—and then you will understand the advantage of "Tempered Rubber" over ordinary Rubber. It is this tough, specially compounded rubber in the tread, and the extra thickness of the tread, that keeps ROYALS on the wheels of your car thousands of miles after ordinary tires would be worn out and thrown away.
- SAFETY... The makers of ROYALS have worked hard to help reduce accidents caused by skidding and blow-outs. The massive blocks that make up the ROYAL tread have the same sure grip on the road as cogs on a cog wheel. And beneath the tread—right through to the heart of the tire—strong cotton cords and rubber are combined in an exclusive manner that makes blow-outs almost impossible.
- EXTRA VALUES... Unless you have driven on ROYALS these "extra values" may come as a surprise. You will find that ROYAL tires are so good looking they improve the appearance of your car. And perhaps more important—they give such excellent service that you can be proud to tell your friends, "I always drive on ROYALS."

Ask for "ROYALS" the next time you buy!

The Proven STOMACH REMEDY for Bad Cases

Amazing evidence of the remarkable speed with which indigestion and stomach pains can be stopped has been revealed by medical experiments and X-ray photographs of actual cases. These prove the ingredients of 'Bisurated' Magnesia to be the quickest-acting and most effective known to medical science. Within 5 minutes a teaspoonful of 'Bisurated' Magnesia in a little water produces complete relief in cases where numerous other remedies had failed entirely.

Its Action Explained—

Simply take a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water. The moment this soothing draught reaches the tortured stomach it begins to soothe the sour, fermenting, undigested food. The contents of the stomach become as bland and soothing as milk to the sensitive stomach lining. The pain quickly lessens and presently disappears. By following up the treatment after each meal, your harassed stomach will soon lose its tenderness and grow strong, until you can eat whatever you like and enjoy every meal, without fear of wind and pain.

A NOTED ENGLISH DOCTOR SAYS:

"I find that 'Bisurated' Magnesia taken after my meals is the only thing that keeps me free from pain and discomfort, and I take it regularly. I often prescribe it for my patients, and have had very good results."

H.G. — M.A., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

ANOTHER DOCTOR SAYS:

"'Bisurated' Magnesia gives excellent results and is the ideal remedy for stomach pains and acidity. It is particularly recommended for Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Stomach Pains, Flatulence, and even Stomach Ulcers."

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE PERIL

Dying Out For Want Of "Fixing"

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 13. Mr. Hilaire Belloc, witty and majestic as he has ever been, lectured the English Association to-day in the great hall of Westminster School. His subject was the fixing of English; his discourse was a survey of all those languages which have made and preserved the civilisations of the world.

English, says Mr. Belloc, is a glorious language, but it is in peril of dying out for want not of standardisation but of a definition that will be permanent. At present it changes with the years, and phrases and words that once meant one thing now mean another. Words change and as we do not now speak the same language as that which our grandfathers spoke, so our grandchildren will use the words which we use but in a different sense and for different purposes.

In Mr. Belloc's young days nobody spoke of "raising" a hat; nobody "faced up" to problems or "fell for" delights. Indeed, Mr. Belloc dreads the day when it will be necessary to add a footnote to "Thou wast not born for death immortal bird," to explain that "bird" in those days did not mean "old chap."

The English language is the twin of the the modern world, for it did not, in spite of all the arguments of those who disagree with Mr. Belloc, arise until the fifteenth century, and since then it has wandered casually, due to the "indeterminate political expansion" of societies in which English is the medium.

It has no traditions as Etruscan, Italian, Castilian, Spanish, and French have tradition; and unlike Greek, Latin, and French, it has never been fixed. "It is," Mr. Belloc affirmed to-day, "the business of our time to fix the English language before it is too late; otherwise there will be no such thing for posterity as the English language."

It has affected the English character, this instrument which is the creation of our great writers, for it has revealed in all their splendour two of the main characteristics of the English people—their power to create imaginary people, and their humour. But all that cannot last unless something is done and done quickly. To-day the Frenchman speaks in the language of his classic writers, but the Englishman, who missed the chance to fix his language in the days of Swift and the classic eighteenth century, even now may have missed the opportunity of perpetuating his glories, for no language can become even one of these "dead" languages which have made civilisation live and endure until it has been confined within the flexible borders of agreed usage.

Snobbery, according to Mr. Belloc, has done much harm already, quality which influences us as much as appetite. It was snobbery which did its best "to utterly and for ever drive" the split infinitive out of daily use.

A NOVEL CLUB IN PRAGUE

Members To Tell A Joke A Day

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17. They have founded their Club, those men in Prague who have pledged themselves, by the mere act of membership, to play, or at the least to tell, a joke a day. It is not difficult, perhaps, to guess to what professions they will be found to belong. For there are callings which can only prosper if they keep "homo sapiens" in good temper; stockbrokers, for example, who are having constantly to explain why that has not in fact risen which had so inevitably to rise. Doctors, dentists, chiropractors—the public may fear them, but they, in their hearts and behind their bland faces, fear the public more. Clergymen have a place in their daily round for a jest or two as they go patting heads; and as for commercial travellers, they are the very soul and backbone of the Club. It is their self-appointed and arduous task to meet the same faces, over and over again, after lapses of time sufficient to disprove the rosiest of earlier estimates. And on the other side, there are the grim, complacent pharisees of those who have no sort of need for jokes; civil servants of the covenanted sort and "homo bureaucratic" in all his many guises. Solicitors may be found hovering doubtfully between the two.

Their brethren of the wig have decided long ago that jokes, in very strict moderation, are useful adjuncts to a prosperous career; but then advocates are by definition men who have to placate. Solicitors try to maintain a thin trickle of humour, to keep things easy in their consultations with clients, but woe betide them if they attempt their imperfectly mastered jests in the chambers of barristers. By and large in a world eager to trade, the joke is secure of its place, and the Prague Club deserves to be welcomed by the many men, in every country, who realize, after some lost years, that what is holding them back is no specific ignorance or incompetence in their tasks, but a wooden lack of geniality which must be vanquished over at all costs.

Where the Prague Club is showing itself timid and remiss is in not providing for the invention of new jokes. There exists in the elaborate machinery of human life no means of easing the social difficulty of the oft-repeated jest. People somehow cannot obey the preliminary injunction to say at once if they heard the tale before. They prefer to listen and to attempt a hollow laugh, because they dread the embarrassed silence when they have robbed a fellow-man of the best thing he had to say. It is not so much distrust of histrionic capacity which seals the eager lips of the novice as well-grounded fear that the sort of mature, travelled and important men, whom it is chiefly necessary to conciliate with cuffed gulps, will have heard anything good long before. He is not so much afraid of telling a joke badly as of telling a chestnut; yet there is no way of knowing a chestnut ex-

LANE, CRAWFORD OF SHANGHAI

Goes Into Voluntary Liquidation

A resolution that Messrs. Lane, Crawford & Co., Ltd., one of the oldest firms in Shanghai, should be wound up voluntarily was passed at an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders at the registered office of the company, 25 Nanking Road, on Oct. 29.

The resolution, proposed by Mr. D. W. Crawford and seconded by Mr. D. Mennie, read as follows:—

That the Company be wound up voluntarily and that George, Aston Buyers and Brian Oscar Blaken, chartered accountants, both of 20 Canton Road, Shanghai, be and are hereby appointed joint and several liquidators for the purpose of such winding-up.

Present at the Meeting were Mr. D. W. Crawford, chairman, Mr. D. Mennie and Mr. J. A. Cheeseman, directors, and a representation of 1,504 shares.

The Chairman in moving the resolution, said:—

This meeting has been called in order to consider, and if thought fit, pass a special resolution to wind-up the company voluntarily. I feel that it is hardly necessary for me to explain why this step is necessary, as you must all be only too well aware of the present financial conditions prevailing in Shanghai which, of course, reflect on our trade. For the past three years the company's annual accounts have shown losses and this has also been the case for the present year to date as may be seen from the statement of account laid before the meeting. Furthermore, there are no immediate signs of better times coming and your directors feel, therefore, that they have no alternative other than calling a meeting of shareholders for the purpose of going into liquidation.

In the opinion of your directors, the company is solvent as regards creditors and a declaration of solvency has been signed and filed with the Registrar of Companies to this effect, and so in consequence, the winding-up, if decided upon by you at this meeting, will be a members' liquidation. As I have said, your directors are fully confident that all creditors will be paid in full but I cannot make any forecast as to what return of capital shareholders may expect. I would assure you, however, that all concerned will do their utmost to make the return to shareholders as substantial as possible. Before putting the resolution to the meeting, I shall be pleased to answer any questions which shareholders may care to ask.

There being no questions asked, the Chairman put the resolution to the meeting and it was carried unanimously.—N.C.D.N.

HOME COMMODITY VALUES

City Unruffled By Sanctions

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

The prospect of the applications of sanctions against Italy had little appreciable effect in the City to-day. The City has been discounting the effect of sanctions for some time past by raising commodity values and lowering security prices.

To-day stock markets were fairly steady apart from a further decline in gilt-edged stocks and some commodities such as wheat, cotton and tin further advanced. Other metals, however, were lower.

Holders of Italian lire notes in this country are to-day making strenuous efforts to sell their holdings at ever widening discounts.

But although the discount has widened to 81 lire to the £ compared with the rate on Friday of 74 no buyers are coming forward. Business based on legitimate trade deals is still being done at the pegged spot rate of 601 lire to the £.

cept bitter trial and error. A Club which could guarantee that its jokes are not only good but new would have an eager rush for membership, and plenty of candidates entered by their far-sighted parents long before their birth.

LAUNCHING OF
THE PENELOPE

Duchess Of Abercorn
To Perform Ceremony

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 13.
The cruiser Penelope is to be launched to-day by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Belfast. The naming ceremony will be performed by the Duchess of Abercorn, wife of the Governor of Northern Ireland.
The Penelope is the first of the three cruisers of the 1933 construction programme, and the others are the Newcastle and Southampton built on the Tyne and Clyde respectively. She is the first cruiser to be launched at Belfast since the War.

Whereas the Newcastle and Southampton are the first of a new class of large cruisers, with a displacement of 9,000 tons and an armament of 12 6-in. guns, the Penelope is a repeat vessel of the Arethusa class, of 5,200 tons and six 6-in. guns. Her turbine machinery, which is being manufactured by the builders of the hull, will be of 61,000 shaft horse-power, giving a speed of 32 knots. The Penelope should be ready for service a year hence, when she will probably join her sister-ships the Arethusa and Galatea in the Third
Cruiser Squadron, Mediterranean Station.

Seven earlier ships of the Navy
have been known as the Penelope.
The first, dating from 1778, was a 21-gun ship, which was wrecked in the West Indies. Her successor, a 36-gun frigate, captured the French brigantine in 1783 and thereby added a new ship to the Navy and a name to the Navy List which has continued to be borne until the present century. Perhaps the most famous Penelope was the 36-gun frigate of the name commanded by Sir Henry Blackwood, one of Nelson's captains. In 1798 she attacked the 80-gun ship Guillaume Tell, a fugitive from the Battle of the Nile, and hung on to her with such doggedness for five hours that the Lion and Fouquier were able to come up and complete her capture. A 16-gun paddle called the Penelope was at Bomarsund during the war with Russia in 1854, and a still later one served creditably at the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882. The last Penelope, a light cruiser commanded by Captain Hubert Lynes and Laurence Oliphant, served with the Harwich Force in many North Sea actions under Admiral Tyrwhitt during the War.

PORTSMOUTH STAFF CHANGE Commander J. M. Howson has taken up duty as staff officer (operations and intelligence) in the Portsmouth Command, in succession to Commander J. M. Bell, who has been appointed to H.M.S.
Repulse, Commander Howson graduated at the Staff College in 1932, and was since commanded the destroyers Witch and Decoy on the China Station. He has just entered his thirtieth year of naval service, having joined Osborne College as a cadet in September, 1906.
During the War he served as sub-lieutenant of the cruiser Devonshire and sub-lieutenant and lieutenant in the destroyer Milne.
From March 1918, he was flag
lieutenant to Admiral Sir Doveton Sturdee, Commander-in-Chief of the Nore.

PETTY OFFICERS' UNIFORM
Since 1923 petty officers with one year's service as such, and confirmed in the rating, have been allowed to wear the uniform known as Class III, with jacket and peaked cap, gilt buttons, and gold cap-badges. A new Order states that petty officers who become qualified to wear this uniform within a year of completing their first period of service, but do not undertake to re-engage for a further period of service and are, therefore, ineligible to be paid outfit gratuity, may be permitted to provide themselves with Class III uniform at their own expense if they wish to do so. Such ratings are to be credited with kit upkeep allowance at the rate appropriate to the uniform they are wearing. Class I uniform is that worn by chief petty officers, Class II, is that of petty officers and men dressed as seamen, and Class III, is that of petty officers and men, chiefly in the technical branches, who are not dressed as seamen. Classes I, and III, are generally known as "fore-and-aft rig."

GERMANY AND ITALY

A Wait And Watch
Policy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18.
Official circles in Berlin deny that there have been any negotiations recently to move German policy in favour of Italy, or that any further contacts have been made with Rome.

On the other hand, in certain party quarters, there is a feeling that since Italy and Germany have a similar form of Government, there ought to be closer collaboration against the democratic countries and the League of Nations.
Though this feeling must be taken into account, it is not shared by the highest quarters which determine German policy. Moreover, there has by now been a sufficient return to normal governmental methods to make it very unlikely that party members could effectively act over the head of the Foreign Office.

NOT GULLIBLE

"Wait and see" is still the German watchword in the present crisis. It is not felt that the time has come when Germany could advantageously abandon the neutrality which she has hitherto maintained.

In a world news survey broadcast by the powerful "Deutsche Sender," stress was once more laid on Germany's neutrality in the Abyssinian dispute. Despite her pre-occupation with her own tasks and anxieties, Germany and the German

THE WORLD WEEK BY WEEK

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 15. The General Election. The decision to take the right Ministerial move. Thickening difficulties later would only prejudice their chances. This Parliament is to meet for its last few sittings on Tuesday week. The anticipated polling day is Thursday, November 21. The campaign will be a strange struggle and the result as momentous in its way as that of four years ago.

Jingoism and Nemesis
National Government bids well to do far better than was hoped before the crisis. Its lucky asset is the plight of its opponents. Interest in the Samuels Liberals is dead among the vast bulk of the people. Mr. Lloyd George's "New Deal" has been swamped by the international storm. The jingo stampede of the majority of Labour may be its Nemesis. Millions will vote, above all, against any risk of a Socialist success which would mean so plain a risk of war, chaos, and disaster. It looks as though the Oppositions had cut their own throats. Labour will no doubt regain a large number of seats, but has ceased to hope for anything like the two hundred captures of its fallen dream.

Defence and Deddon
Much will depend upon the energy and courage with which National candidates advocate the whole doctrine of Defence. In this respect, above all, it will be a soldiers' battle for the Unionists. Mr. Baldwin looks chiefly to the Left. The real problem of his leadership is on the other side. For three years masses of the steadiest kind of citizens, Unionist and detached, have been inclined to abstain from voting. Nothing but the appeal on national and Imperial security will bring out once more the full strength of these reserves.

"Progress and Finance"
The Ministerial Press rightly follows the Prime Minister in insisting that there is to be no weakening in the programme of social reform and domestic reorganisation. For instance, unemployment assistance is to be ample, and measures for the depressed areas vigorous. For such purposes the ordinary revenue will remain as free and elastic as now if the Defence Acts are financed, as they ought to be, by loan.

Peace or Peril?
But let there be no mistake about what will be the paramount issue at the polls when all is said. Is peace still to be, as it used, the greatest of British interests? Or does the Government mean to go further with sanctions at the risk of war? Is the necessary and just reconstitution of our armed power to mean really increased security or the major peril of increased commitments? In a word, is it to be Defence for prevention rather than for intervention? The electoral danger to National Government would arise at the last moment if the wrong answers were given to these questions.

"No Lady's Life"
Mr. Amery supported the Government through thick and thin on India. He sounded the note of grave warning on sanctions in his remarkable speech to his constituents last week. It should be reprinted. He said, amidst cheers, "I am not prepared to send a single Birmingham lad to his death for Abyssinia." This is the mood of millions upon millions of quiet citizens who will be heard from at need. The "Daily Mail" rendered a signal public service last week by taking a real "Peace Ballot" among its readers. The acid-test in politics is going to be, and soon, "Blockade or not?"

Article 16
On Monday the League Council by a unanimous vote, Italy excluded, decided that Italy had committed an aggression. That decision brought into operation Article 16 of the Covenant—invoked for the first time. On Wednesday the Assembly met to receive the Council's report and to "advise" Austria and Hungary to be used to take part in any resultant action. On Thursday, after Baron Aloisi had recorded Italy's objection, the Assembly decided by a majority vote of fifty to two, Italy and Abyssinia being excluded, to institute collective measures against Italy. The said fifty States were constituted into a Coordinating Committee, which on Friday decided as a first measure to raise the embargo on the export of arms and munitions, to Abyssinia and to impose the like embargo against Italy. Albania thereupon followed the example of Austria and Hungary in refusing to participate.

What Machinery?
The wording of the Covenant is such as to mean anything or nothing. The Council can establish an aggression "either unambiguously or by a majority vote." But no member of the Council or of the Assembly is bound to take any resultant action. Switzerland on Thursday said she would associate herself with the League, but would not do anything that conflicted with her "neutrality." What, in fact, is happening at Geneva is that, on Mr. Eder's initiative, the members of the League are being invited voluntarily and severally to make "economic" war upon Italy.

The Greek Monarchy
The date of the Greek plebiscite still stands as November 3. Irony in Athens is a well-developed, quality. Mr. Tsaldaris had determined to wait for the plebiscite to decide the issue about the restoration. On Thursday he was quietly and simply dismissed. The method was neither parliamentary nor electoral. He was accosted, when getting out of his car, by officers of the army, navy, and air force, who asked him to resign. He resigned. General Kondylis thereupon formed a Government. Its first act was to declare the monarchy to be restored in a provisional sense, pending the plebiscite. The revolution was effected with politeness on all sides. Yet no Greek in his heart believes that Venizelos is finished.

A PIT-BOTTOM FIGHT

Trouble In South Wales Colliery

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18. An attempt to start a stay-down strike at the Taff Merthyr Colliery, about seventeen miles from Nine Mile Point, was the cause of ugly incidents to-day. So far as I was able to gather from stories told by three miners—James Arthur, D. D. Roberts, and Edward B. Jones—some forty members of the Miner's Federation went down the pit on the morning shift with the idea of surprising the management with a stay-down demonstration.

The management, apparently, had been warned and they kept the night-shift officials down to help the morning shift officials to deal with any situation that might arise. At the pit-bottom according to James Arthur, the men were artfully separated to prevent concerted action. About fourteen, however, remained together at the bottom of the shaft, and the manager came along and demanded to know why they were not at their working places. They told him they were refusing to work and were going to stay down the pit. The manager ordered them to leave the pit at once, but when the men refused to move he told them they would be ejected.

Thomas Arthur said he was seized by the throat and a general struggle began in which officials and Industrial Union men, who were called in to assist, took part. The three men told me they were seized in turn, thrust into the cage and drawn to the top. They added that they were struck with sticks.

That there had been fighting of some sort was clear, for they were wearing bandages about the arms and hands.

The story of this pit-bottom fight ran in wildly exaggerated version through the neighbouring villages of Bedlinog and Trelewis, and the people turned out to demonstrate when the morning shift came to the surface.

TRAIN PELTED WITH STONES
As I arrived in the district, police officers were chasing a number of youths up the mountain-side, and the youths were throwing stones at them. About two o'clock, when the men of the morning shift came up to the surface, a crowd of several thousand people had gathered on the highway overlooking the colliery. A railway runs past the colliery, just below the highway, and as a train which was taking about fifty imported workers home left the colliery station, it was pelted vigorously with stones in spite of the presence of a large body of police. Someone threw a bicycle at the train, but it was not known whether the owner himself threw it in anger or whether it was a machine that had been taken from one of the non-federation workers.

As the train passed below a bridge about two to three hundred yards from the colliery two coping-stones from the parapet were pushed over, struck the roof of one of the carriages, and glanced off. It is believed that one or two men in the train were struck by stones, but no one was seriously hurt. A little later a "bus" containing miners was showered with stones until the passengers were discovered to be members of the federation. The police had great difficulty in trying to clear the road. Large numbers of men and youths climbed the hillsides above the road and threw stones at them. A police sergeant was out about the nose but was able to continue on duty. A constable was cut severely under the eye and had to be taken away for medical treatment.

In Trelewis village an attack was made upon some members of the Industrial Union and also, for some unknown reason, upon the post office, where several windows were smashed. A resident of the village, Mr. James Williams, who was standing near the post office, dropped dead, apparently from the excitement. There was a good deal of stone-throwing, and I was told that six men were taken into different houses bleeding about the face.

TEMPERS RISING
The temper of the miners is rising dangerously in some districts. One explanation of the miners' anger in the Sirhowy and Tredegar valleys is that they believe, rightly or wrongly, that the coalowners are preparing to counter the wages movement by building a strike-breaking organisation. They saw that at Cwm Felin Fach, the nearest village to Nine Mile Point Colliery, there are plenty of local men who could have been engaged at the pit without importing Industrial Union members from Merthyr and Dowlais. The imported men, they declare, are paid at the rate of £4 a week, compared with £2 10s. which is paid to members of the South Wales Miners' Federation, and they are given extra inducements, in the shape of boots and clothing, to accept service in the pit.

To-day all has been quiet in the neighbourhood of Nine Mile Point. The morning train which should have brought men from Merthyr and Dowlais did not arrive, and it is understood that the railwaymen of Merthyr refused to bring it in, in accordance with the decision reached on the previous night. The federation men presented themselves for work at the morning shift, but were refused their lamps, presumably because the management feared that they did not intend to work but only to swell the numbers staying below.

Special Committee Appointed

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18. Hundreds of members of the Ranelagh Club were present at a meeting in London, yesterday, to discuss the controversy concerning the future of this famous sporting and social centre.

The club's ground in the south-west of London has been scheduled as a building site under the Town Planning Act. One section of the club supports the owning company, which has entered into a building agreement with the Barnes Borough Council. Another section urges that the club's 120 acres of grounds must be preserved as an open space.

Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, who presided, pointed out that the property of the club was vested in the Ranelagh Club, Ltd., and the members themselves had no rights in the property. Shareholders were not necessarily members. A shareholder who collected sufficient shares might dictate the policy of the club.

Sir Trustram Eve said their ideal and objective was to make Ranelagh a members' club. "If we do not lose our heads and make mistakes, in my opinion that objective can be obtained," he said. Sir Trustram said that power over the club and the land was in the hands of two members of the club, who had enough shares in Ranelagh Club, Ltd., to give them absolute control at the shareholders' meeting.

Resolution Passed
After Sir Trustram Eve had spoken the chairman asked "any directors who were in favour of selling the club were present but there was no reply." Sir Claud Jacob moved the appointment of a committee known as the Ranelagh (Open Space) Special Committee to take the necessary steps to secure the town planning of the area now occupied as Ranelagh Club on the basis of a private open space, and the continuance of Ranelagh Club, the club to be a members' club with a committee elected by members in the usual way, and the special committee to raise funds from members.

The resolution was passed except for a section directing the special committee to approach the Lord Mayor with a view to arranging a public meeting at the Mansion House. This was defeated.

It was announced that the following had consented to serve on the special committee: "Sir Claud Jacob, Lord Beatty, Sir Roger Keyes, and Sir Hugh Watson." On the proposal of Sir Percy R. Laurie, seconded by Wing Commander Sir Louis Greig, it was decided to send a letter from the meeting to the Minister of Health imploring him to do all he could to help in the matter.

A member who pointed out that the American polo team were coming to this country next year asked, if the worst were to happen, would they lose the ground?

ter the wages movement by building a strike-breaking organisation. They saw that at Cwm Felin Fach, the nearest village to Nine Mile Point Colliery, there are plenty of local men who could have been engaged at the pit without importing Industrial Union members from Merthyr and Dowlais. The imported men, they declare, are paid at the rate of £4 a week, compared with £2 10s. which is paid to members of the South Wales Miners' Federation, and they are given extra inducements, in the shape of boots and clothing, to accept service in the pit.

To-day all has been quiet in the neighbourhood of Nine Mile Point. The morning train which should have brought men from Merthyr and Dowlais did not arrive, and it is understood that the railwaymen of Merthyr refused to bring it in, in accordance with the decision reached on the previous night. The federation men presented themselves for work at the morning shift, but were refused their lamps, presumably because the management feared that they did not intend to work but only to swell the numbers staying below.

This kind of thing, seems to have been happening right along the Sirhowy and Tredegar valleys, and Mr. J. Prosser, the miners' agent for the Nine Mile Point miners' lodge, said to-day that there was not a pit at work in the two valleys.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

"Brewster's Millions"

"Chick" McGill, Hollywood ace cameraman, got the shock of his life when he landed at Ajaccio in Corsica to film background scenes for "Brewster's Millions," coming to the King's Theatre, the Herbert Wilcox production starring Jack Buchanan. He looked round, blinked and exclaimed, "But say, this is California!"

He saw amazingly similar scenery, cacti, palms, cypresses and picturesque rocky coast. Even the fact that every other inhabitant seemed to carry a gun was like a breath of home. "I could have sworn I was in California," he told Jack Buchanan, the star, a few hours after Buchanan arrived to begin location scenes. "But these Corsicans have one over us. I can get my American cigarettes cheaper here than in America. A swell country!"

Chick's camera unit spent a week in Corsica and "boxed" some beautiful shots which form the background for several important sequences in the Jack Buchanan film. They took pictures of the harbour at Ajaccio for the yachting sequence, and spent a lot of time in the mountains filming material for the sequence where Jack is captured by bandits. Picturesque scenes were also filmed in the towns and villages to complete the pictorial backgrounds of this excellent comedy with music.

"SANDERS OF THE RIVER" In Hollywood the late Edgar Wallace is known primarily through his detective stories and mystery thrillers—which he turned out at an amazing rate of speed. His chief bid for enduring fame, however, is more likely to rest upon his authentic stories of the African jungle. These stories—the Bosambo and Sanders series—are enjoying a belated vogue at present not unlike the craze for Rider Haggard a few generations ago. A screen version of "Sanders of the River," has been produced by Alexander Korda, and is being released through United Artists with Paul Robeson; Leslie Banks and Nina Mae McKinnin in the leading roles.

Edgar Wallace obtained his knowledge of the upper Congo country from intimate experience. He was a member of the British Punitive Expedition of 1897 that ended with the capture of the mysterious Walled City of Benin in reprisal for the treacherous massacre by the natives of an unarmed party of eighteen Englishmen. He did not accompany the small British force that penetrated the jungle. He was at that time a corporal in the Royal Army Medical Corps and remained on the West Coast at the Expedition's base. But he saw the prisoners—cannibal Benin, with sharply filed teeth and horrible trophies dangling from their necks—as they were brought in, and spoke to soldiers and marines who took part in the actual capture of the Walled City.

Wallace remained in the Congo area for some months, absorbing in his own words, "the sights and sounds as blitting paper absorbs water." The result of his studies was the Sanders epic, now translated onto the screen. The film was directed by Zoltan Korda, who led his production unit into the very jungle-land where Wallace had gained his material. The film expedition spent five months in the country around the headwaters of the Congo River, securing scenes of native life never before filmed, and making recordings of native songs and ceremonial chants. More than three-quarters of the entire film was made in Africa and more than 20,000 natives served as movie extras.

JOAN MARSH BACK TO M.G.M. After an absence of two years from the studio where she won her start in pictures, Joan Marsh has returned to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play a role in ANNA KARENINA, co-starring Greta Garbo and Fredric March.

During her absence from M.G.M. Miss Marsh declares, she set forth to "find herself." Between picture engagements, she studied art, worked in a gown shop, and sang on the radio.

"ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN"

At The Oriental Theatre

There is a full-fledged earthquake in "Advice to the Lovelorn", starring Lee Tracy in the leading roles which will be screened at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

"Advice to the Lovelorn" is the story of a wise-cracking reporter on a Los Angeles newspaper, whose editor punishes him for sleeping through an earthquake and missing the biggest story of the year by demoting him to the post of "Agony" column pilot. Sally Blane is seen opposite Tracy, while others who are prominently cast in his support are Isabel Jewel, Paul Harvey, Judith Wood, and May Boley. Sterling Holloway, C. Henry Gordon, Jean Adair, Matt Briggs, Charles Levinson, Adalyn Doyle and Etienne Girardot complete the cast.

LYLE TALBOT SATISFIED

Lyle Talbot has finally gratified a boyhood ambition. His boyhood dreams and plans to become an automobile racing driver were thwarted by his parents, but the popular actor got a chance to indulge in the long suppressed desire in his latest picture "Red Hot Tires" commencing to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

Talbot portrays the role of a daredevil racer and the film contains many sequences revealing the thrills and hazards of the race course.

"Babe" Stapp, nationally known racing champion, taught Talbot the rudiments of the exciting sport and the actor proved to be an apt pupil. He became so fascinated by it all as a matter of fact, that rather than sit on the sidelines between scenes waiting for his call, he spent every available moment behind the wheel of one of the racing cars.

The picture is a thrilling tale in which daredevil drivers fight for the love of a beautiful girl. The cast includes besides Talbot, Mary Astor, Frankie Darro, Roscoe Karns and Cavin Gordon. D. Ross Lederman directed.

DAYTIME BEAUTY

"A well-groomed effect all day is possible for the business girl," believes Karen Morley, who is co-featured with Edward Everett Lorton in "8 Bells," the new Fox Film comedy-drama now at the Star Theatre, which concerns a business romance.

Miss Morley's idea is to bring the necessary makeup cosmetics, generally left on one's dressing table, to work.

"Four part of your favourite foundation lotion into a tiny bottle, put some of your regular face powder into a small box, get another container of cream rouge, and a jar of hand cream, and then arrange everything in a box in the corner of a desk drawer."

"The RAVEN" WITH KARLOFF & BELA LUGOSI

"AND SEE THE WORLD"

"Join the films to see the world."

Such is the advice of Louis Sarecky, whose job as production manager also involves the selection of proper settings and locales for Paramount films.

"Any famous resort or celebrated scenic beauty in the world can be duplicated within a few miles of the film city," he said, "and often more realistically."

Here is a comparative guide list which Sarecky's search for the past several years has developed:

Swiss Alps—in the High Sierras

French Riviera—along the Pacific coastline, Santa Monica Bay

Louisiana swamps and everglades—country near Laguna beach

Monte Carlo—Agua Caliente. The famous Kyber pass of India—at the Fairmount ranch.

Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia—in Big Bear valley, Curwood's "frozen north"—regions around Mt. McKinley.

It was Sarecky who discovered the typical rolling prairies of the Oklahoma Country—near Bakersfield, California, where the classic "Cimarron" was photographed.

HENRY SAYS "NO"

As soon as he finished his role of Richard Coeur-de-Lion in Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount spectacle, "The Crusades," Henry Wilcoxon made an announcement.

He said that he will make no more costume pictures until he has also established himself with the American and British public in modern roles.

Director Clarence Brown secured her for the role of Lili, a young and unaffected girl who falls to win the heart of Count Vrensky, portrayed by Fredric March.

MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY

"The South Seas could not come to Hollywood, so Hollywood went to the South Seas!"

Tersely, Director Frank Lloyd thus explains why he took a production company of record size to the South Seas to photograph scenes for Irving Thalberg's production of "MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Lloyd wanted South Sea actors, and he needed hundreds of them for the tropical life sequences in the famous James Hall-Charles Nordhoff story of England's most dramatic maritime mutiny.

The cast that Lloyd totaled 2500 men, women and children. With the aid of Polytechnics, he

AMERICAN STAR IN ENGLAND

Douglass Montgomery In "Island Fling"

Douglass Montgomery, young American star of "Little Man, What Now?" and "Eight Girls in a Boat," has been signed to make a British film by the City Film Corporation.

The film will be a South Sea romance entitled "Island Fling," based on Commander King Hall's novel "Bunga Bunga." Production starts on Monday at the Walton Studios.

Montgomery came over to England a few weeks ago on holiday, meaning to return to the New York stage. Arrangements for finding a suitable play mistreated and he extended his holiday to Paris.

There he was met by Mr. Hutchinson, of City Films, who signed him up at once. It is possible that he will make a second film before returning to America.

Also in the cast of "Island Fling" will be Betty Davies, who is on £20,000 contract to City Films, Alfred Drayton, and an important American woman star not yet announced. Harry Hughes is directing.

GEORGE ARLISS TO STAY IN ENGLAND

George Arliss has decided to make no more films in Hollywood. His decision to remain in Britain is probably due to the fact that he has to pay double income tax if he alternates his work between the United States and London.

Mr. Arliss starts this month his next British picture at the Shepherd's Bush studios. The story is based on Edgar Wallace's "Mr. J. G. Reeder" detective stories. Period stories based on Samuel Pepys and Cagliostro have been suggested as future subjects.

built two villages as they existed one hundred and fifty years ago—the largest village capable of accommodating 200 families of islanders.

"When the company left Hollywood on the unusual 'location' jaunt, more than 100 tons of equipment were taken along. The tonnage was augmented on the return voyage by 'props' from the South Seas to be used in the picture. These included full-grown palm and breadfruit trees, mighty war canoes, and ten smaller canoes. Also, scores of other packing cases were filled with tools, bowls, weapons, cocoa palm leaves, cocoa-nuts of all sizes and hundreds of other odds and ends that will become a vital part of the sea drama.

With the company back in Hollywood, filming of important scenes with Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery, and Charles Laughton in the leading roles, is to be launched at once. Producer Thalberg announced.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Tough Training For Sir Guy

LEROY SPEAKS

Sir Guy Standing, famous Paramount actor, who is featured in "Gentlemen of the Navy," is one of the people who "have" fought their way through the world.

When he was five years of age, his father, Herbert Standing, who was one of the best amateur boxers of the time in England, taught him the art of self-defence in a way that few youngsters of to-day could stomach.

He would place Little Guy on a table, box with him—and not gently—and finally knock him off the table, but he always had one eye on his son to see if he was going to cry, and above all to see if he would get back on the table. He was never disappointed. Guy always scrambled back for the second round.

When he was fifteen he was stranded in Newcastle, after joining a stock company against his father's wishes. So he shipped aboard a barque carrying coal to London. The crew thought they would have sport with the lad, but Sir Guy had a fight every day of the voyage, and won them all.

Later, when Guy worked his way to second mate on a square rigged, he found that to maintain discipline a hard fist was the best medium. "We used to have to fight our way through the fo'c'sle whenever we had a new crew," said Sir Guy.

And to this very day he keeps fit boxing a fast four or five rounds with his trainer at least three times a week.

ANNA KARENINA WINS AWARDS

More Laurels For Garbo

London, (By Mail) The film, "Anna Karenina," starring Greta Garbo, Fredric March and Freddie (Copperfield) Bartholomew has won first prize at the International Film Exhibition here. Twelve nations, including Britain, competed, and 84 films were shown to some 38,500 spectators.

The colour films were a great success. "Becky Sharp" was applauded as being the first example in which colour became a practical element.

As special prizes are given for the best Italian films in each category, Italian products scarcely entered into the competition. "La Casta Diva" won the Mussolini Cup as the best Italian film. It is based upon the life of Bellini, the Sicilian operatic composer, whose centenary is now being celebrated.

Paula Wessely, the famous Austrian actress, who starred in "Episodes," was awarded first prize for the best female interpretation of the year. The French actor, Blanchard, won first prize for his performance in "Crime and Punishment."

The Associated Artists' producer, King Vidor, was awarded the prize for the best director, while the laurels for the best cartoon of the year were inevitably carried off by Walt Disney with "Band Concert."

BRITISH SUCCESSSES

The "Daily Telegraph" Film Correspondent writes:—The final awards are something of a triumph for British pictures.

"Escape Me Never" has won the prize for the best foreign production showing Italian scenes and "The Seagulls" made by Gaumont—British Instructional Films, the prize for the best entry in its class.

"Sanders of the River" in which Paul Robeson sings magnificently, has been given a cup by the City of Venice for the film with the best musical accompaniment.

MOZART'S LIFE FILMED

Little Talk But Lovely Music

Mr Basil Dean, who finds time to direct the affairs of one of Britain's fastest-growing film companies—Associated Talking Pictures—as well as to produce for the stage, indicated to me in a talk in Glasgow yesterday that we may well look forward to the forthcoming screening of the film he directed this summer, based on the life of Mozart.

Much of the story, which was written by Margaret Kennedy, was directed in Vienna and Salzburg, with the official support of the Austrian Government; but the really interesting feature is that Mr Dean seems to have been a pioneer among British producers in "cutting out the talk."

There is very little dialogue in the film, and even natural sounds have been suppressed, emphasis being placed on the lovely music. The result has been wide-spread bookings for the film abroad, and there seems little doubt that it will be equally successful here.

An unfortunate factor, as Mr Dean pointed out, is that the producer of films such as "Whom the Gods Love" is at the mercy of the exhibitor. A large number of cinemas are fitted with sound apparatus which cannot do justice to the music.

Another interesting film which has been almost completed is "Midshipman Easy," a version of Marryat's famous story prepared for the screen by Anthony Kimmins, and featuring Hughie Green, the young star of wireless and variety fame. Mr Dean tells me that Carol Reed, the young director of the film, has "won his spurs" in this production.

Gracie Fields is busy on a new film for the company, and Annabella, the international star, will start work in December on "Ballerina," a film version from the novel by Lady Eleanor Smith. Mr Dean says that he would like to produce a Scottish film but in view of the extensive programme announced by the company that is not likely to mature for some time.

LADIES CHASE THIEF

Europeans' Plucky
Action

"I should like to congratulate both Mrs. Bird and Miss Robinson on their pluck in chasing the man, and I should like to thank Mr. Gilchrist for assisting," said Mr. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when Leung Kam (27) unemployed was charged with snatching a handbag, the contents of which were valued at $23.51 from Mrs. Bird at Nathan Road near Observatory Path on November 4. It was stated that complainant was walking along Nathan Road towards St. Andrew's Church, in the company of Mrs. and Miss Robinson and when they were between the Duro Garage and the Observatory entrance witness felt her bag snatched. Witness was holding her bag under her left arm. It contained a pair of sun glasses, a leather purse containing $1.08, a powder compact and a few other articles. Witness immediately turned round and saw a Chinese man, the defendant, from whom she snatched back her bag. The other two ladies shouted out and the man ran up the side path to the houses behind the Duro Garage with Miss Robinson in pursuit.

Thinking to cut off the man's flight, witness ran round the garage into Kimberley Road and called to a Chinese constable, who took no notice. The constable was standing near the boardings in Nathan Road.

Then witness saw the defendant come behind the garage. He was half-running. He ran a long Kimberley Road and down Carnarvon Road. Almost at the junction of Granville Road witness called to some Chinese boys who gave chase and at that moment Mr. Gilchrist took up the chase and caught the man just in Granville Road.

Sentence of four months' hard labour with twelve strokes of the birch, or, if accused was found unfit to serve a further two months in default was imposed.

Detective-Sergeant R. Davies appeared for the prosecution.

It was stated that the unfortunate girl is suffering from a fractured skull.

SPURIOUS NOTE CASE

Chinese Charged

A forged $50 note purporting to have been issued by the Chartered Bank said to have been received following the transaction of a sale of property in the country, figured in a case heard at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when Chan Chok Hung (28), and Li Tsun Pong alias Li Ching Ming (28) faced Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones on various counts in connection with the forged note.

First defendant was charged with (a) uttering the note in question on October 30, and (b) with possession of the note, while second defendant was charged with aiding and abetting in uttering the note.

Detective Sergt. R. Ellis who appeared for the prosecution, said that he had instructions from the Attorney-General to withdraw the charge against second defendant, who accordingly was set free.

Outlining the case, Sergt. Ellis said that on the day in question defendant went to a shop in Mon-kok district and ordered $12.35 worth of goods, for which he tendered a $50 note. The accountant of the shop then informed defendant that he did not have sufficient change for the note, and gave instruction to another clerk to go to a money changer for notes of a smaller denomination.

Defendant said that this was not necessary as he had some small change, but when he searched his pockets, could not find any. It was then agreed that defendant together with the accountant and the latter's brother should go to a money changer. They went through the streets, the accountant suggesting several shops in Shanghai Street, where the money could have been changed. Defendant would not agree to visiting these shops, and at last when the party arrived at the corner of Argyle Street and Shanghai Street, where a money changer was situated, the accountant informed defendant that he thought the note was forged.

A struggle took place, the accountant and his brother being assisted by a stranger, who seized the note from defendant's hand and helped in taking defendant to the station. At the station defendant informed the Police that "a friend had given it to him." Consequently on the information received second defendant was arrested.

Called to give evidence, Li Tsun Pong alias, Li Ching Ming (the discharged man) said that about two months ago he went to the country to see about the demolishing of a house. He sold the materials for $90, and went to Canton to change the money into Hong Kong notes. He returned to Hong Kong to look for employment.

Witness added that he instructed his wife to change the note in question, but she returned to say that it was bad. "I therefore went to Canton to change it, but the bank said that as I had lost the exchange receipt, they could not accept it," witness added. Continuing he said that he had known Chan Chok Hung since boyhood. Defendant came to borrow money from him, and he informed him that he had nothing to give him, except a forged $50 note. Defendant took it from him.

Defendant alleged that the note was given him by witness in a street in Yaumatei, but this was denied by the latter. "He saw my relatives first about a loan, and then came to me. I told him the note was forged but he took it," witness emphatically asserted.

Expert evidence was then given by Mr. P. M. Pinna of the Chartered Bank who said that the note (U/H. 123003) was undoubtedly a forged one.

Defendant was committed for trial at the next sessions.

WOMAN CHARGED

Before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday, Wong Sam Mui, a 30-year-old married woman was charged with having uttered a forged $10 note of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China at the Wing Lung Hardware shop at No. 5 Hillier Road on October 24 last.

After evidence had been heard, defendant was committed to stand her trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

HEWART CO. SUED

Contractor Asks Payment for Work Done

The Hop Cheong Co., through Mr. A. el Arculli sued the Hewart Construction Co., the principal contractors for the Admiralty for excavation work on Stonecutters Island for $889 before the Paines Judge, Mr. Justice, R. E. Lindsell, at the Summary Court yesterday.

Mr. Arculli stated in his opening that the claim was in respect of $200 being deposit as guarantee for the performance of the contract and $689 for certain work done.

The defendants were the principal contractors for the Admiralty in respect of certain work done at Stonecutters Island. They had as sub-contractors the Chit Foo and Co. who in turn appointed the Chit Fui and Co. as their sub-contractors, and the last named engaged the plaintiff firm to do the work. The plaintiff firm did the work, but there was difficulty in obtaining payment from the Chit Fui and Co., and eventually it was arranged that the defendant firm should deal directly with the plaintiffs in regard to this payment.

The contract and the "deposit" receipt which the plaintiffs had with the Chit Foo and Co. were handed over to the defendant firm, and the plaintiffs now claimed that the defendants, having taken over the liabilities of the Chit Foo and Co., should be responsible for the payment.

Mr. Arculli then called evidence in support of his opening statement after which the defending counsel, Mr. C. E. R. Sanderson, argued that he had no case to answer.

Hearing was then adjourned till 10 a.m. on November 21.

SUMMONS DISMISSED

J. McPartland, a partner of Jimmy's Kitchen, Wanchai, who was summoned by Andi Kaletrup, a Dane, also a partner in the business, made his second appearance before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. A. el Arculli appeared for the defendant, but the complainant was not legally represented.

After defendant and a witness for the defence had given evidence, His Worship, remarking that no evidence was produced in corroboration, he must discharge the defendant.

The summons was accordingly dismissed.

BURGLAR VISITS MR. SETH'S HOUSE

Three Months' Gaol
Imposed

Sentence of three months' hard labour was imposed on Kong Leung, a substitute gardener in the employ of Mr. J. H. Seth, of "Deepdene" Deep Water Bay, when he was convicted yesterday by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy of breaking and entering the premises with intent to commit a felony at 9 p.m. on Sunday.

For the prosecution, Sergt. Edwards stated that on Sunday Mr. Seth went to the pictures in the evening, and all the servants, except an amah and the defendant, also left the house. About 9 p.m., the amah went to sleep, and heard a crash and saw a hand coming through the window of her room. She attempted to seize the hand, but it was withdrawn. She then started shouting "Save life!" and carried on until Mr. Seth returned. Mr. Seth telephoned the Police Station, and a constable was sent to make enquiries. The constable saw the defendant, who stated there was nothing wrong, but the amah suspected defendant, who was taken to the station, and there he admitted trying to break in with the intention of stealing an electric iron.

INTERPORT CRICKET REVIEWED BY ROTARIAN

Mr. Hancock Gives Interesting Facts At Rotary Meeting

An appeal to the local public to support the coming Interport Cricket games was made by Mr. H. R. B. Hancock, the president of the Hong Kong Cricket Club, when he delivered a very interesting paper on "Cricket" to a large gathering at the weekly tiffin party of the Rotary Club held at the Hong Kong Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Hancock gave a very comprehensive survey of the game from its early stages and recounted many anecdotes which were as whimsical as they were amusing.

Prof. L. Forster who presided at the function said that they had Mr. E. H. Mundson of Foochow with them again that day and stated that through Mr. Mundson, Mr. C. T. Wang sent his regrets at being unable to sponsor a Rotary Club in Swatow but nevertheless had delegated the task to Mr. Mundson to do so.

Mr. Mundson on speaking said that he had brought greetings from the Foochow Club and as he was more of a travelling man he was more often away from Foochow than he was able to be present. He was always glad to come and enjoy himself at the local Club.

In the last few weeks Mr. Wang had suggested to him to start the movement going and he had at last interested about 10 leaders to have the Club organized at Swatow. (Applause)

Continuing Prof. Forster said that Mr. Wang voiced the hope that Hong Kong would in the near future be able to sponsor a Club in Macao.

"My great task in connection with this position is not to find speakers but to persuade made to speak and after a great deal of persuasion I have managed to ask Mr. Hancock to inaugurate the Cricket Week. Mr. Hancock needs no introduction and I have much pleasure in asking him to open his innings."

Guests introduced were: Messrs. E.H. Mundson (Foochow), A.W. Hayward, G.R.M. Rickets, T.A. Pearce, F.J. de Rome (Hong Kong) and Prof. E. Ma (Peking).

Addressing the gathering Mr. Hancock said:—

I feel highly honoured at being asked to address you to-day. When Mr. Forster approached me a little while ago to say a few words about cricket in general and Interport cricket in particular—at first I refused. I couldn't believe that such a subject would be interesting to you Rotarians who have been accustomed to listen to oratorical displays by those who have previously addressed you, and on such weighty subjects as the Hong Kong census, waterworks, currency, etc. However, he assured me that my subject-matter would be of interest. I eventually succumbed to his persuasive pressure. I think Mr. Forster is one of those people who has the gift of being able to persuade people to do what they don't want to do. I may, however, say at the beginning that I am really glad of this opportunity, as there are one or two things I should like to say publicly which I haven't had the chance of saying before.

It seems appropriate that I should be addressing you to-day on this subject, in view of the fact that we are expecting the day after to-morrow, an Interport cricket side from Shanghai. The game commences on the 9th November and will be continued on the 11th and 12th, and I hope you will all turn up and watch the match and help to give a warm welcome to our visitors from the North. Now I am going to weary you at first with a few statistics.

GOING BACK TO 1866

These Interport matches against Shanghai date back to 1866, 69 years ago, when the first game was played on our present ground, and was won by Hong Kong by an innings and 264 runs—a good start. There was a long spell from 1867 to 1888 when no matches were played. They recommenced in 1889 and with the exception of the war years, have taken place fairly regularly ever since. Up to date Hong Kong has won 17 matches, Shanghai has won 15 matches and two have been drawn.

The highest scoring match was at Shanghai in 1923, under the Captaincy of Mr. T. E. Pearce who still delights us with his skill, when 37 wickets fell for 1214 runs, and the lowest scoring match was also in Shanghai in 1889 when 37 wickets fell for 296 runs.

The highest completed innings was made by Hong Kong in Hong Kong in 1909—455 runs for 9 wickets, declared, and the lowest was also made by Hong Kong in 1906 in Shanghai—46 runs. Mr. T. E. Pearce, an old (not in years) and distinguished Interport figure, has the honour of having made the highest individual score for Hong Kong, 145, not out, in 1923 in Shanghai, and Capt. E. I. M. Barrett has, to date, made the highest individual score for Shanghai, 165, at Shanghai, in 1921.

AGAINST MALAYA

With regard to the Straits, or Malaya, as they prefer to be called, the Interport matches were started in 1890 and so far Hong Kong has won 7 and Malaya 6. There have been far fewer encounters between these two sides, owing to the longer time required for leave (it generally means a month), and there is always difficulty in getting men to undertake the trip. The highest scoring match in these games was in Hong Kong in 1901 when 40 wickets fell for 847 runs—the lowest was in Singapore in 1891 when 40 wickets fell for 396 runs.

The highest individual scores made are for Hong Kong 108 by Mr. Harry Owen Hughes in Hong Kong in 1929—and for Malaya 110 by Mr. G. Glassford in 1897 also in Hong Kong. The highest completed innings was made by Malaya in Hong Kong in 1897, 413 runs, and the lowest by Hong Kong in Singapore in 1926, 35 runs, and, sad to say, I skipped the Hong Kong side on that occasion. Enough of statistics.

BODY LINE BOWLING

Cricket for the time being has come somewhat under a cloud, owing to the unfortunate controversy over body line bowling—I do not propose to enter into this discussion at the present time, but would say that so far as our Interport matches are concerned, there has never been a hint at any such practice. Personally, and speaking from a long experience, as I played my first Interport match in 1901, I consider that these games do a great deal to establish more firmly the bonds which should exist between communities in the Far East, and are to be encouraged. There are some people, I know, who cavil at what they call "waste of time" in carrying out these games. I am sure myself that no harm is done, only good, and men return to their labours refreshed, with new friendships formed and fresh ideas. Some of the happiest times of my life have been spent on the cricket field, and some of the best friends I have were made in the course of playing cricket. When I first played in Hong Kong—nearly 40 years ago—on the same ground we have to-day, there were no railings such as we have now round the ground, and the seahorse came up to the edge of the cricket field where the building of B. & S. now stands. I have often seen a ball hit into the sea, a big hit to-day! I suggested on one occasion, being very fresh and just out from home, to Mr. Sercombe-Smith, who was the Captain of the Hong Kong Club, that we might have boundaries, having on one occasion had to run about a mile along Queen's Road after a ball. He replied "certainly not"—it is good for you young fellows to run about, you would get lazy if there were boundaries and the ground is too small!—and I'm not sure he wasn't right!! In Hong Kong a fielder, even after a long innings, generally leaves the ground quite fresh—whereas in Shanghai and Singapore, where the grounds are large, a man must get after the ball, and has to be in good condition.

THE "BOKHARA" WRECK

A few days ago you probably saw in the local papers, reference to the death of Dr. J. A. Lowson, a former Hong Kong resident, and a very fine Interport cricketer. Dr. Lowson was one of the ill-fated team of 1892 which was wrecked in the "Bokhara" in a typhoon on their return journey to Hong Kong. He and a Captain Markham were the sole survivors of our team. We have in the Hong Kong Cricket Club Pavilion a picture, given to us by Dr. Lowson, of Sand Island where the "Bokhara" was wrecked, framed with some wood taken from one of the boxes of treasure which was later salvaged—a very interesting memento, and in the Cathedral here there is a memorial to the whole team in the form of a stained-glass window, subscribed for by members of the Shanghai cricket club—no other Cathedral in the world contains a memorial to members of a cricket team.

ITS STRONG APPEAL

The game of cricket has, during many centuries, passed through many phases—and it is difficult to fix with any certainty the date of the first authentic mention of the game—some scattered references are found in old records of Elizabethan times. Hambledon, the first English club to be formed was established in 1750—and it continued till 1791 when the M.C.C. took its place as the leading authority of the Cricket world. It is still our great national game, with its specially English appeal and standard of honour. In fact, the love of cricket is an integral part of the English spirit. It appeals to all ages, and its appeal is as strong to the "hooker-on" as to the players—and why does it appeal so strongly to the Englishman and in what way does it differ from other games? I think Neville Cardus has given us an explanation when he says "Cricket draws out the whole man, not only his practical craftsmanship, those tricks of the trade that may be exploited almost automatically if you are good enough, but also his wit, his temper, his humours, those animal spirits in man which at any moment, given a chance, impel him to all sorts of romantic hazards," and then what game is played in more delightful surroundings—and the spirit of the game is probably its finest feature. We don't play these Interport matches for a shield or cups or medals, but just for a small silk flag which the Captain of the winning side generally manages to keep for himself as a memento of the occasion. The games are always played in the friendliest of spirits—and it really doesn't matter which side wins, so long as we have played the game—and in all my long experience this has always been the case—and I hope it always will be.

Of course, we couldn't carry through these Interport matches without the support of the public. The expenses are heavy, and I am happy to say that our friends have always hitherto come up to scratch, and put their hands in their pockets to help to pay the expenses in connection with entertaining the visiting team, and I hope this year, in spite of the depression, we may count on your continued support.

AN AMUSING INCIDENT

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all those who have in the past helped us in a pecuniary way and by acting as hosts to our visitors. The greatest hospitality has always been extended to Hong Kong teams away from home, and it is up to us to reciprocate in any way we can. Anyone who is a member of a Hong Kong Interport side playing away must consider himself extremely fortunate. One cherishes memories, not only of keen cricket and fine cricketers, but also of many delightful people who always strive with all the means in their power, and with complete success, to give the visitors the best of times.

I must tell you of a very amusing incident which took place in 1904 when Sir Matthew Nathan was Governor, and when we were entertaining teams from Shanghai and Malaya. Capt. Barrett who was then playing for Malaya and J. I. M. Drummond, the Shanghai wicket-keeper, were the guests of H. E. during their stay in the Colony, at Government House. Drummond, owing to a broken finger, was unable to play against Hong Kong, and he and Capt. Barrett had tiffin at Government House and decided to go down to the ground afterwards and watch the cricket. Just after tiffin His Excellency was called away on some business so he told Barrett and Drummond to take the Government House chairs (there were no cars in those days) down to the ground, and send them back for him. They duly arrived at the ground, and the Bandmaster, thinking His Excellency had arrived, struck up "God Save the King" and the two cricketers took the salute, whilst the assembled multitude stood at attention! Later H.E. arrived in one of the same chairs, accompanied by his A.D.C., but the Bandmaster refused to be caught again and H.E. walked to his seat in silence, somewhat puzzled by these unaccustomed signs of disloyalty.

GOVERNORS ALWAYS INTERESTED
The cricketing community of Hong Kong must congratulate themselves in always having had Governors of this Colony who were interested in cricket, and who have always contributed in no small way to the entertainment of our visitors. I remember on one occasion after a very convivial dinner at Government House, there was a bridge four with H.E. as one of the players. They were all experts and were having a very keen rubber, when suddenly one of the guests who was H.E.'s partner said "If only you had had a spade, 'Consul-General,' we should have made two more tricks" and he continued for the rest of the evening calling our Governor by that title, much to H.E.'s amusement. Referring again to the wreck of the "Bokhara" one of the Hong Kong cricketers who was drowned was Capt. John Dunn, an old Harrovian, and one of the finest

ANOTHER BAND STORY

I have another Band story in connection with the same Interport series, in 1904. After the Interport matches were over, some ten or twelve of the players had been lunching at the Club, and after lunch went across to the cricket ground to watch a game between two local teams. As they left the Club they saw the Band of the Burma Infantry marching along the road. One of the party, an officer in the Indian Army, immediately stopped the Band and ordered it into the cricket ground where the spectators enjoyed the music of various comic operas. Suddenly a perplexing messenger in uniform arrived and informed the visitors that this particular band had been ordered by His Excellency the Governor for a garden party at Government House, and that the same band was then an hour late! History doesn't say what happened to the young officer of the Indian Army.

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND ITALY

According to a Reuter cable yesterday, it appears that a more conciliatory Anglo-Italian atmosphere is prevailing in Geneva. This is stated to be the outcome of the conversations held between Sir Samuel Hoare and Baron Aloisi. Italy is said to be likely to satisfy all conditions essential to the reduction of the British Forces in the Mediterranean. The conditions are the cessation of Italian anti-British propaganda; the withdrawal of another division of Italian soldiers from Libya. The cable further adds that Baron Aloisi has shown definite desire to improve Anglo-Italian relations and has made certain suggestions in a more or less personal capacity, which, however, in the event of their development, has to be referred to Signor Mussolini for his approval.

Such news coming from Geneva at this time of the crisis is reassuring, but we would like to hear more from Baron Aloisi as to whether or not Italy would break off hostilities against Abyssinia, specially in view of the fact that the League has now arrived at a definite finding; that the aggressor has been named, and that the prescribed treatment under the Convention has been pronounced.

We feel that Britain would not be lulled into a false sense of security until Italy is ready to end her aggressive policy against Ethiopia. Of this the Duce gives no sign and the reinforcements that are still being rushed to Libya, where no semblance of danger exists, can only be interpreted as a threat to Egypt, whose defence against foreign attack is a British obligation.

There is another significant fact which the world must bear in mind. Only recently Mr. Laval has told Sir George Clerk that his position as mediator would be made easier if the British Government would withdraw at least part of their naval forces from the Mediterranean. That, of course, was quite impossible for Britain to comply with in view of the inflammatory trade levelled against Great Britain by the Italian press.

We understand why Mr. Laval made such a request. His effort to build a bridge between Italy and the League was sincerely meant, but none could be so sanguine enough to hope that it would meet with any measure of success. Yet face to face with this request for Britain to withdraw some of her naval forces from the Mediterranean was Mr. Laval's own explicit admission that Italy is wholly wrong under the Covenant. And yet it is on the Covenant that French long-term diplomacy has for years been grounded.

It is also commonly known that the new Franco-Italian Entente was extremely valuable to France in every respect. But there are only two sides to a fence when one is driven to choose. France must make her choice. She can have no doubt about Britain's sincerity or Britain's earnestness. She stands behind the League and for the Covenant, and she has no other ulterior motives.

We frankly believe that such is Britain's attitude in the present crisis, despite the absurd statement made by Senator Borah the other day. He said that League penalties would not end the war in East Africa, and that sanctions could not weaken Italy to that extent. On this we do not wish to offer any comments. Opinions differ and time will tell. As to the rest of his statement that the war was fought because Italy wanted more territory and that England was working with the League

If Gossip We Must

(BY "CHANCE").

Captain Oram and his Officers gave one of their usual enjoyable cocktail parties in the "Bruce" on Thursday night. Everybody seemed to be there, and in gay spirits too. It was a smart gathering. Mrs. Fawkes just arrived from England on Wednesday, was charming in figured chiffon, and she and her husband seemed to be enjoying the party I thought. Mrs. Beck, also just having returned from her holiday in England was very pretty in brown taffeta. Mrs. Gordon Duff, who we were all pleased to see out of the Nursing Home, created a most striking appearance in a long dress of old rose, finished with two lovely silver fox furs. Cocktail frocks were much in evidence, and amongst those who favoured them were Mrs. Greening in black and red, Mrs. Hinton in bottle green with silver collar and cuffs. Mrs. Murray's unusual brown and green was smart. Mrs. Pym, Noreen Cooper and Joyce Harris Walker were others in this fashionable mode. Mrs. Clutterbuck was in navy blue, and wore an amusing jockey hat which suited her so well. Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. Selby were there, and also Heather and Betty Gerrard. Sylvia and Valerie Morris came with their mother, who was wearing a smart printed frock. Mrs. Cross, always so smart was in bottle green, and so too was Sheila Dewnap. In a tunic, Friday's Bride was there with her mother and her fiancé, and looked very sweet in pink and blue. Mrs. Smith was looking very chic in black with an extremely smart white hat and little stiff black veil. Mrs. Marshall was in yellow, and pretty Mrs. Woodward in beige. Lt. Commander and Mrs. Conway were together, and I saw too Major and Mrs. Caffyn, the latter in ice blue satin. Mrs. Howden's attractive sequin coat was worn over a black chiffon gown. Mrs. Wise was wearing a lovely dress of navy taffeta with gold spots. Mrs. Moore was attractive in maroon green crepe, and thoroughly enjoyed the party. Blue and white was worn by Mrs. Delamaine and Mrs. Livesey. Printed-crepe-de-chine was another popular mode of dress, and was worn by Miss Henderson, Kathleen Simonds and also Mrs. St. Claire Ford. Later in the evening a number of people from the Bruce went on to dance at the Hong Kong Hotel which was very crowded, with several large and very gay parties.

At the Illingworth-Knox wedding on Friday there was an extremely smart gathering. The bride made a lovely picture in ivory chiffon, and wore a beautiful tulle veil and a very pretty pearl headress, and seemed very self composed throughout the whole afternoon. She was attended by small Simon Conway, who was very proud of his sailor suit, and carried out his duties nobly. Mrs. Cavanagh Mainwaring was the matron of honour, and looked so pretty in green chiffon and a little brown velvet hat and brown gloves, carrying a small bouquet. The bride's mother was smart in a mulberry chiffon frock and hat to match. Mrs. Wise presented a most striking appearance in a tailored dress of claret and a hat to match. Mrs. Coltart was extremely smart too in black, and was accompanied by her husband who proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Gibson in a lovely long black frock was outstanding. Black was a popular colour, and two smart people I noticed who favoured it were, Madame de Preycourt and Mrs. John Moore. Navy blue was also popular, and was worn by Mrs. Clutterbuck and Mrs. Beaver, also Mrs. Brindley who had touches of red, and Mrs. St. Claire Ford was in navy and white crepe-de-chine. Mrs. Paton was lovely in yellow with a splash of tartan colour over her left shoulder. Mrs. Conway was there with her husband, and looked very sweet in brown. Heather and Betty Gerrard were there, both very smart as usual, and pretty Kathleen Simonds, in printed crepe-de-chine. Green was chosen by Mrs. Stanton, who wore a smart black velvet hat, and Mrs. Howden favoured pink lace, with an attractive pink feather boa. Mrs. Hinton I noticed in a smart dress of royal blue crepe with a smart grey hat, and her husband I saw there too. Mrs. Clegg Hill was striking in dark red with a smart hat to match, and Vera Hodgson was attractive in blue and black. Later in the afternoon the bride left for the honeymoon, looking very charming in pale pink and a large picture hat with pink trimmings.

On Wednesday night I looked in at the Hong Kong Hotel and found quite a large crowd there, several parties being given for new arrivals in Hong Kong of the Corru which arrived that morning. Mrs. Delamaine was there in a party, and was attractive in green and silver. Miss Barton, daughter of the British Minister to Abyssinia, who was passing through en route for Shanghai was very smart in bottle green. Mrs. Beck was in a party given to welcome her back, and was lovely in black. She seemed very glad to be back at the "Grips" once more. Plum velvet was favoured by Mrs. Ansell, who was in a party with Mrs. Newbiggin who was wearing red, and also Mrs. Lester Kennedy who was in scarlet crepe. Mrs. Condon who we were pleased to see quite well, again, was striking in beige lace with touches of green on her dress. Miss Jean Bird was smart in brown, and attractive Irene Dunsford was in white crepe, with a chic cape of black feathers. Eileen Stevens chose check taffeta, and struck an unusual fashion by wearing long red gloves. Norah Kemsworth I noticed with her fiancé, both looking delightfully happy. Mrs. Dawson who was dancing with her husband, was wearing a lovely dress of pale blue. Mr. "Tiny" Mason, who arrived from Singapore in the Corru was watching the dancing with "Tiny" Munro, and left on Friday for England on the Empress of Japan, after spending two gay days in Hong Kong.

GAY FRIDAY EVENING

(BY "ONLOOKER").

Friday evening was very gay in Hong Kong. There had been the Illingworth-Knox wedding, after which people were still celebrating at the "Grips," and there was the exciting gala opening of Becky Sharp to attend. Also, that enormously popular person Mrs. "Fay" Grossman has returned to the Colony, and one had to greet her, and hear all the latest from London town.

The Queen's was absolutely packed for "Becky," and I heard lots of unfortunate late arrivals were turned away. I caught sight of a great many "well-knowns" including General and Mrs. Thackeray—the latter wearing a lovely black dress, and coat to match.

Later, at "The Grips," there were masses of people, all looking awfully pleased with life—and what with weddings, the return of old friends, and our first all coloured film we had reason to be on the crest of a wave. Mrs. Cavanagh Mainwaring was one of the first people I sighted in the wedding party. She looked so pretty in a becoming shade of pale green. Then I saw Hermione Beaulieu—a very striking figure in a fascinating dress with a Roumanian look about it, and she had on dozens and dozens of bangles, or else one huge one which seemed to cover most of her forearm. "They" or "It" were most attractive anyway.

There is no doubt about it, black is devastatingly becoming to most people—Heather Gerrard, and the lovely Irene Dunsford both looked marvellous in same. Mrs. Wise had a beautiful blue dress which suited her to perfect tion, and Mrs. Coltart looked charming in deep pink.

What fun it is to be able to wear our evening wraps again—Mrs. Hinton had a gorgeous gold lamé coat with a "Georgian" flare. This period tendency for clothes has endless possibilities—I suppose we shall all be appearing with high waists, and masses of curls piled high on our heads à la Becky Sharp ere long.

There were two unknown visitors at the "Grips." One most attractive fair girl in cherry red looked very lovely leaning back in her chair with the panelling for a background, and a very youthful vision in spot muslin who was seen dancing with our popular "Jackie" Broome—I wonder who they were?

The Hong Kong Polo Club held their gymkhana on Sunday at the New Polo ground, in perfect weather and ideal surroundings. A large and appreciative crowd turned up to enjoy the hospitality of their hosts, and the band of the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Welch Fusiliers played during the afternoon. The party was honoured by the arrival of Sir Thomas and Lady Southern. We were all so glad to see Sir Thomas back with us once more. Lady Southern was charming in navy and red figured silk and carried a red parasol. Major General Thackeray was there, also his wife and Mr. Clough Taylor. Printed navy was chosen by Mrs. Thackeray who looked delightful. Mrs. Seth Smith, who returned the previous day in the Conte Rosso was wearing pink and dark blue. The most popular colour of the afternoon was navy, and it was chosen by Mrs. Harpore in the Corru was watching the dancing with "Tiny" Munro, and left on Friday for England on the Empress of Japan, after spending two gay days in Hong Kong.

LABOUR CANDIDATE TO CONTEST SEAT OF SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

ELECTION NOMINATIONS PROGRESS

Sixty Five Women Among The Candidates

London, Nov. 5. Nominations for constituencies returning 613 seats were received yesterday and the only constituency for which nominations have yet to be made is the English Combined Universities returning two members. There are two rival candidates in 386 constituencies as compared with 409 at the last election.

For the contested seats the Opposition parties in the aggregate have 760 candidates in the field. Labour is represented by 552; of these Liberal 154, Independent Labour Party 16, Independents 36. Government supporters totalling 585, include 511 Conservatives, 44 Liberal National, 19 National Labour, 9 National and two others.

Women candidates number 65 and in two constituencies there is no male candidate. Only two Communists have been nominated with 25 at the last election. Three supporters of Major Douglass' "Social Credit" plan have received nomination.

The seat of Speaker of the House of Commons, the only member of the House who in the past has, by virtue of his office, been accorded unopposed return, is contested by a Labour candidate.

Mr. Oliver Baldwin, son of the Prime Minister, is the Opposition Labour candidate for Paisley.

The son of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the son and daughter of the former Premier, Mr. Lloyd George are seeking seats.

The sons of Mr. Winston Churchill, Sir Stafford Cripps and Mr. J. H. Thomas are also in the contest and one member of the late Parliament, Mr. Isaac Foot, Liberal, has three sons among the candidates.

LABOUR BROADCAST

A broadcast election address last night was delivered by Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Labour, who declared that the Government's full support of the League policy and of the collective peace system was too long delayed and he denied that Britain's armed forces were inadequate for purposes of national defence or insufficient to enable the country to take its part in developing the policy of collective security through the League.

The Labour party, he said, was pledged to maintain armed defences at the highest point of efficiency consistent with the country's needs and with its responsibilities with other League powers under the Covenant.

FEARS OF CRISIS

Referring to the fall in unemployment, he said the figures showed that over whole post-war period industries had not expanded fast enough to absorb the normal increase of population.

Regarding the suggestion that a financial crisis would be precipitated if labour were returned to power, he said: "We seek no crisis and if one should arise it will be due to interests which refuse to accept the fully expressed will of the people."

SPEECH BY THE PREMIER

Pursuit Of Peace

London, Nov. 5. The Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, in a speech at Liverpool, said that not only did Britain need strong and tried government but he believed also that Europe was looking to this country for help and advice as she had never done before.

There was undoubtedly throughout Europe a strong and resolute desire for peace. Britain must do what she could to pursue peace and in regard to the present war they must try to find some solution agreeable to Italy, Abyssinia and the League. Realising that they had failed to prevent war, the next duty was to bring that war to an end, not by isolated action but by all sharing the risks and all sharing the honour of settlement if obtained.

Peace in Europe was necessary and an essential preliminary to restarting of international trade which was essential for prosperity of all Europe.

NOT AN IDLE THREAT

Several Chinese Arrested

Peiping, Nov. 5. That the recent Japanese threat to round up alleged Blue Shirts if the Chinese authorities did not do so was not an idle one is indicated by the admittance of a spokesman of the Japanese military forces that several Chinese were arrested here yesterday and to-day.

The spokesman refused to disclose the exact number of arrested men and said that after investigation by the Japanese they will be handed over to the Chinese authorities.

He declared that the arrests were carried out "with understanding" and not "with permission."

The Chinese authorities have denied that the Japanese are seeking the abolition of the Peiping Military Council, but admitted that the Japanese considered the Council to be superfluous.

ALLEGED PLOT

Tientsin, Nov. 5. "Discovery" of an alleged plot by a group of professional bombers to assassinate many Japanese officers in North China was the cause for the latest Japanese protest to Chinese government officials. Japanese circles explained to-day. One of the alleged plotters in the North China disorders was arrested and confessed, it is said.

Meanwhile Japan's Foreign Office confirmed reports that it had sent instructions to Consul-General Shigeru Kawagoe here and that Mr. Kawagoe had based his official protest to the Chinese government on the instructions.

A Japanese spokesman said the anti-Japanese movements continued after a protest by the Tientsin consulate on September 2, hence Japan was forced to register another protest.

Asked whether the Japanese protest threatened force, the spokesman replied, "I don't think so."

He expressed the hope that the Chinese themselves would take effective measures in curbing the uprisings.

HUGE RAILWAY SCHEME

Development Over Five Years

London, Nov. 5. A big scheme of railway development works extending over five years and costing some £30 million, for which a loan to be guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Exchequer will be raised, has been agreed upon following prolonged negotiations between the Government and four main line Railway Companies.

Grant of necessary powers by the Parliament is only awaited before this extensive programme of expansion and reconstruction is put in hand.

In addition to reconstructing and enlarging many important stations and goods yards, building of rolling stock and laying of new branch and loop lines, the proposed works include extension of the automatic train control installation of colour light.

TENSION EASIER

London, Nov. 4.

By the week-end it is considered like that Italy will have satisfied the conditions essential to the reduction of British naval forces in the Mediterranean and the reduction will be carried into effect.

These conditions are the cessation of Italian anti-British propaganda and a reduction of the Italian forces in Libya by at least another division.

Partly as a result of Sir Samuel Hoare's talks with Baron Aloisi in Geneva, a more conciliatory Anglo-Italian atmosphere is apparent. Baron Aloisi shows a definite desire to improve Anglo-Italian relations and has made certain suggestions in a more or less personal capacity which, however, in the event of their development have to be referred to Signor Mussolini for approval.

DOCTOR CHARGED WITH MURDER

Startling Development In Moffat Mystery

London, Nov. 5.

The Moffat murder mystery provided a startling development at Lancaster when the charge of murder of Mary Jane Rogerson on which Dr. Buck Ruxton appeared on remand, was extended to the murder of his wife, Isabella Ruxton.

The prisoner was excited and loudly protested his innocence, crying out, "my religion would not allow me to commit murder." He refused to be quieted and the case had to be adjourned.

In the meanwhile the search for the missing remains continues in Dumfriesshire. A complete right forearm has just been found. Vital parts are still missing including the torso, two sets of finger tips and one foot.

KING ALONE TO DECIDE

Party Differences In Greece

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinances, 1894. Received, November 5, 7.30 p.m.)

Athens, Nov. 5.

The regent, General Kondylis, told pressmen on Monday night that from now onwards the King alone will have to decide the future of the National Assembly which from the very beginning had been a one-sided institution.

When the Greek people on June 9 last passed a vote of confidence in the Tsaldaris government, the assumption was that the People's party would remain united and would continue to collaborate with the National Radical party of which Kondylis was the leader.

Since the overthrow of the Tsaldaris cabinet on October 10 this was no longer true.

The People's party split, with the greater number of members supporting the present government. Over and above this the people through the plebiscite had declared itself unanimously for the return of the King.

Consequently the Government's policy will be dictated exclusively by the interests of the nation and not by the interests of the leaders of the political parties when called on to explain the King's views on the prevailing situation.

PLERISCITE RESULTS

Athens, Nov. 4. Final return in the Greek plebiscite show that 98 per cent. of the electorate favours the return of ex-King George.

This has caused the Prime Minister to announce triumphantly that George the Second is henceforth the irremovable hereditary monarch of Greece.

Meanwhile the Republicans claim that the election was rigged, but the Republican voice is drowned in the overwhelming monarchist majority.

Altogether, four million Greeks went to the polls, testifying to the intensive drive conducted by the monarchists in the effort to place King George again on the Throne.

TEMPORARY HALT IN ADVANCE

Road Construction In Occupied Areas

Rome, November 5. After claiming successes on the whole front on which the advance started on November 3, it is stated officially that the advance has now been halted to permit of road construction.

The First Army Corps from Malucc reached Malaini in the region of the occupied village of Add'baghi. Two columns of Italian and native Army Corps occupied Hausien. Another column from Danakil lowlands advanced up the valley of Dagu and occupied the eastern buttress of Agame.

A despatch from Asmara states that the troops are now described as firmly established on the line commanding all the approaches to Agula and Sulo valleys.

AGULA REACHED

Asmara, Nov. 4.

The First Army Corps column has reached Agula, about 15 miles from Makale, and has established outposts on the other side of the valley almost within sight of the Ethiopian city which is the army's objective in this sector.

A night of heavy rains has turned the tracks near Makale into muddy torrents.

MAKALE SIGNALS

Asmara, Nov. 4.

Beckoning hands and waving white sheets have been seen by Italian planes flying over Makale. They are regarded as signals to the Italians to occupy the town and seem to indicate that the Ethiopian troops have evacuated.

The only troops observed in the neighbourhood by army observation pilots was a group of about 3,000 striking camp and starting in the direction of Makale.

The Italians, meanwhile, claim to have accomplished a general advance along a fifty mile front in the direction of Makale, almost without opposition.

Planes, however, have spotted two large bodies of men moving towards Makale from the south, which may mean that the Ethiopians will make a determined stand before the city, and may try to hold the position.

Italian engineers and road-builders are accomplishing miracles of construction, making passable roads so speedily that truck traffic can bring supplies to the most advanced position.

GORAHAI BOMBED

Addis Ababa, Nov. 4.

Renewed violence and bomb attacks were made on Gorahai on the Southern front on Monday by two Italian squadrons. About 250 bombs were dropped; causing the deaths of 30 women and 15 children, according to reports received here.

ARMISTICE CELEBRATION IN ITALY

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press") (Copyright.)

Rome, Nov. 4.

Special interest is being lent to this year's Armistice celebrations, which in Italy are held on November 4, by a brief speech which Mussolini addressed to the war veterans after a solemn re-velle at the grave of the unknown soldier as well as trenchant comments formally appearing in the Italian press.

Speaking from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia, Il Duce termed the day the anniversary of "The most glorious victory which Italy had won, not only for herself, but for others." The Italian nation which now was involved in conflict, would stand fast in unassailable unity and gain new and splendid victories.

MR. PATERSON'S LECTURE
The Association was very glad to have in their midst yesterday a new member in the person of Mr. A. H. Paterson, who delivered a very interesting lecture on "THE NATIONAL THEATRE."

In the course of his very interesting talk, Mr. Paterson stressed the point of the necessity of "A National Theatre;" he himself had done a great deal of traveling all over Europe and the Continent and had seen most of the plays as produced in the different cities and not only had they brought entertainment to the many who frequented them but greatly helped towards the education of the many thousands of people both young and old.

By the institution of "A National Theatre" the people in general would be taught to appreciate even more the works of great writers by actually seeing the play enacted. He urged the many who were present at the lecture, that on their return home, to bring the matter up before the Parliamentary representatives and to urge them to build in the Home Country "A National Theatre."

Before declaring the meeting closed, the Chairman announced that the booklets of lectures delivered at the Hong Kong Branch of the English Association during the years 1931-34 can now be obtained for 50 cents each from the Hon. Secretary, and that the next meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 3rd, when Mr. H. C. Macnamara will speak on "Blackstone."

INTER-CLUB BILLIARDS

The first two games of the final round of the Inter-Club Billiard Tournament between Club Lusitano and the Catholic Union Club was played at Club de Recreio yesterday and the latter came out the victor with a 92 points lead.

F. A. Gill (Catholic Union Club) made the high break of the day scoring 45 points at the earlier stage of the game, but he eventually lost to M. M. Silva of Lusitano by the narrow margin of 6 points, scoring 194 against his opponents' 200.

The game between A. C. Rozario (Club Lusitano) and U. A. Santos (Catholic Union Club) proved to be a one-sided affair. Santos was undoubtedly the better of the two and was superior to his opponent throughout the game. The end came when Santos made a break of twenty and brought his total to 200 against Rozario's 102.

PACIFIC AIR
SERVICEProceeding With Caution

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18.

Colonel Lindbergh and Pan-American Airways have been proceeding with admirable caution in their task of establishing an air service across the Pacific. For months the experimental flying-boat has been extending its flights in successive stages outwards from the American coast. First it got to Honolulu—2,400 miles out—and returned; then it flew successively to Midway Island and Wake Island, two of the coral atolls which are the main ports of call on the route; and returned. Now in its last flight it has got as far as Guam Island. After Guam, Manila in the Philippines is a mere 1,500 miles farther on, and Canton itself, the terminus of the Pacific service, a further 700.

£200 PER HEAD

So far as these experimental survey flights are concerned, therefore, the back of the task has been broken. It is now hoped that a regular mail and passenger service between California and China can be started in the spring. The flying-boats to operate it are either built or building, the desolate Pacific islands have been equipped with landing facilities, wireless stations, and rest-houses, and the company has even got so far as discussing the fare: a figure of £200—about double the first-class steamship fare—is mentioned. That even at £200 a head a passenger service across this route can pay its way for a long time to come is extremely unlikely. So immense are the stages to be flown that stocks of petrol must be taken that seriously reduce the profitable freight which can be carried. Thus, though the Martin flying-boat can carry forty-four passengers, it is expected that no more than twelve passengers, or even fewer, will be carried on the China service. Nevertheless this audacious venture well deserves to be made. The heavier-than-air machine must essay the crossing of a major ocean sometime, and the world should profit from the experience which the United States is gaining.

Lincolns Beat The Police

In a friendly hockey game at the Police Training School ground yesterday, the Lincolns "A" beat the Police "A" by two goals to nil.

Considering the fact that they only fielded ten men and a very depleted ten at that, the Police did rather well to go down by only two goals.

The game was played at a fast pace and the soldiers opened the scoring in the first five minutes through Taylor. This was the only goal scored in the first half.

After the resumption the Police attacked strongly and bombarded the Lincoln's goal but nothing worth was too good and time and again cleared with lusty kicks.

The next goal came after a smart movement of the Lincolns' forwards and Ridley the centre-forward scored with a beautiful shot which brought Jessop, the Police custodian full length in his effort to clear.

MILWAUKEE

THE GREAT LAKES STEAMSHIP CO.

ROTARY TALK

cricketers the Army has ever had. Capt. Phillip Trevor in his book "The lighter side of Cricket" tells a very amusing story of Johnny Dunn as he was familiarly called and his great friend, Capt. E. G. Wynyard. These two were playing in Dublin-Dunn for the Vice-Regal Lodge v. the I.Z. and Wynyard on the Ince v. Phoenix Park. At dinner on the evening before the match someone asked Johnny Dunn if he was going to get a century next day—he had already made about a dozen that season—"Oh, yes" I suppose so," said Johnny. "The King has ordered one of me." "Look here," said Wynyard, "if we are going to talk about runs, I bet you I get twice as many as you do tomorrow." "You'll have to get the right side of 200 then," was the laconic reply. Now these two men had the greatest appreciation of each other's capacity, and the remarks might have passed into the limbo of after-dinner talk but for the sequel. Next morning both men went in to bat in their respective matches. At lunch time Johnny Dunn came running down in a car to the Phoenix ground and said, "Hello, old man, I've got 68, and am still going strong." Wynyard expressed his congratulations and went on eating his salad. "How are you doing?" was Johnny's next remark. "Pretty well—Johnny looked a trifle uneasy and then went to the score book to look for himself. "He then learnt that Wynyard had made 117 and was undefeated! The situation was getting amusing—both completed their innings after lunch and carried their respective threats into execution—Johnny scored 108 and Wynyard 231!

MORE STORIES

There are many stories about cricket which I could tell you, but my time is up and I will finish by just reciting one or two—one is told of Morley, who was, in his day, the leading Notts bowler, and who always went in to bat last. He was so bad a bat that when he came down the pavilion steps the old horse, used, instinctively, to walk over and place itself between the shafts of the roller. In Hong Kong you won't see the coolies rush to the roller when Dunkley comes in to bat No. 11!

The other one is of village cricket. It is told of the Ludbury team which sometimes had to be scraped together at the last minute, and which differed materially in every match. A ball was sidled in the middle of the pitch. Three Ludbury fielders moved forward. The Captain, Rev. Soames, grappled the dangerous situation. "Thompson," he cried out, "leave it to Thompson." Each of the fielders retired backwards, and the ball fell to the ground between them. The Rev. Soames had forgotten that there was no Thompson playing for Ludbury that week!

Then there is the story of a cricket match which took place in the Solomon Islands between two groups of natives. In this particular match 30 or 40 men played on each side and the game ended in a fierce fight, and a member of one of the teams having had his head chopped off in the encounter. The scoring which led to the fight was original to say the least. The home team went in first and having scored only 10 runs, their opponents claimed the match saying that it was unnecessary for them to bat, as they couldn't possibly make less!

THANKS EXPRESSED

On the call of the President, Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell said he felt it a very great honour to be asked to propose a vote of thanks to Mr. Dick Hancock with whom he had been playing cricket on and off for the past twenty years. When Mr. Hancock first played inter-port cricket the speaker's father was President of the Cricket Club.

"I would like to endorse the remarks made by Mr. Hancock regarding the sports spirit of the game," said Mr. Mitchell. "In this connection I think the press can be a very great power in their descriptions of players and matches. I would like to throw out a hint and that is, when you see in the papers 'friendly cricket', I suppose, as opposed to league cricket, I am very much against that. All cricket should be friendly and it does not matter about the result. At the present time there are a lot more people playing cricket and I can ascribe this to Mr. Hancock and to Mr. T. E. Pearce whom I would like to heartily congratulate on having been chosen to play for Hong Kong next week."

In the old days, said the speaker

U.S. CONGRESS PARTY

Arrive In The Colony

Mr. John Nance Garner, Vice-President of the United States of America, and the speaker of the American House of Representatives, Hon. Joseph W. Byrns, arrived in the Colony yesterday morning on board the President Grant, from Shanghai on their way to the Philippine Islands to attend the inaugural ceremonies of the Philippine Commonwealth on November 15.

The party was met at the wharf by the United States Consul General, Mr. Charles Hoover, and other leading American citizens of Hong Kong.

Shortly afterwards Mr. Garner and Mr. Byrns paid an official call at Government House, where a guard of honour was present, drawn from the Royal Welch Fusiliers. Calls were also paid to Commodore Sedgwick and Major General Thackeray.

AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE
Mr. and Mrs. Garner and Speaker Joseph E. Byrns were also guests of H.E. Sir Thomas Southern at Government House for lunch, after which they made a motor tour of the Island. When interviewed in the morning regarding China's new silver policy, Mr. Garner refused to make any statement. He said that he had not granted an interview since his election, "and I shan't do so until my term of office is ended. In the firm of Roosevelt and Garner, Roosevelt is the speaking partner."

Hon. Mr. J. W. Byrns, Speaker, stated that during the 14 years in which he had been a member of the House of Representatives he had advocated the granting of independence to the Philippine Islands, and he was now greatly pleased he was en route to see that freedom inaugurated.

CURRENCY REFORM

A supporter of the American silver buying policy, Senator William H. King, of Utah, when told of the new move by China, expressed regret. However, he thought that the new move would have no effect on the policy of the U.S. Government as announced in the Silver Bill, which provided for the buying of a billion ounces of silver.

He said that he thought that China leaving silver might facilitate an international conference dealing with economic and monetary affairs, which might be held with a view to stabilizing currencies and attempt to establish a metallic monetary base on which the currencies of the world could rest.

"The day must come if international trade and commerce is to continue, when international exchanges are fixed so the value of monies have stability and a relation to one another based on a standard, either gold or silver. In my opinion the standard should be gold and silver."

DIFFICULTIES AHEAD

The Senator expressed regret that China had felt constrained to abandon her silver policy, and predicted that she would have great difficulty with a managed currency. "She is not in a position to manage her currency effectively as did Britain, and the new policy may produce confusion, both internal and external."

Great Britain, in the opinion of the Senator was to blame for the increase in the price of silver. He did not believe that the United States had a great deal to do with it. "China cannot expect to go along normally when the fiscal policies of the world are disrupted and valuations are changing day to day."

The Vice-President, Mr. Garner, and the Speaker, Mr. J. W. Byrns, are attending an investiture to be held at Government House this morning at 11 o'clock, while in the afternoon they will be the guests of Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung at a garden party at 254 The Peak, the residence of Sir Robert.

One played cricket in much more care free manner than now days.

League Cricket is getting more like Test Cricket with the teams playing for a draw. Business is quite serious enough during the week, Saturday afternoon is all too short and we should all make the most of it and should try to make the bat hit the ball and not the ball hit the bat."

In conclusion Mr. Mitchell thanked the local public for the financial support in connection with the forthcoming Interport and closed by thanking Mr. Hancock on behalf of the gathering for a very delightful and interesting talk. (Applause.)

LOCAL TRADE WITH ITALY

Business Diverted To Other Channels

In connection with the proclamation contained in the Hong Kong Government Gazette Extraordinary, issued yesterday, applying sanctions on Italy, we learn that Hong Kong will not be affected appreciably. Figures obtained by our representative show that last year Hong Kong's exports to Italy totalled only $185,646 comprised in the main of mineral oils and ores, valued at $125,574. Sundries came next in value, amounting to $14,793. Also $13,941 worth of Chinese medicine, consisting in the main of cassia was exported to Italy.

On the other hand Italy suffers to a greater extent, as according to statistics available, Hong Kong last year imported approximately $3,000,000 worth of commodities from Italy. Piecegoods occupied premier place being valued at $1,531,022. Metals came next showing a total of $14,793.

Most of the piecegoods consisted of rayon and rough blankets. Following the announcement in the Government Gazette, our representative instituted inquiries from commercial sources, and was informed that inquiries have already been received regarding goods of British manufacture.

This would indicate that importers are hesitant regarding the commitment of further orders from Italy. It is also thought that Japan and Germany will come in for their share of business for goods, that otherwise would have been placed with Italy.

Foreign Ladies End Court Action

A summons against Mrs. M. Soldini, of No. 8 York Road, Kowloon Tong, taken by Mrs. A. Rocha, of No. 169 Sai Yeung Choi Street, 1st floor, regarding an alleged assault that took place at the Star Ferry recently, was withdrawn before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Mr. C. J. Coie, who appeared for the complainant stated that the matter was a purely personal affair, and as much unpleasantness would be caused which would do neither party any good, he asked for a withdrawal of the summons. Mr. J. M. d'Almeida Remedios, for the defendant, said he had no objection to such a course being adopted, as he was in entire agreement with the views expressed. The Magistrate accordingly withdrew the summons.

MEDICAL AID BY ST. JOHN'S

Brigade's Praise- worthy Efforts

The New Territories Branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade has treated the following cases during the month of October:—Maternity 162, New cases 5,522. Old cases 9,138. Examined by Doctor 2,610. Home Visits 808. Government cases 20. Children's Ward 20, and sent to hospital 2. At Cheung Chau there was an infant born with deformed feet and no fingers or toes on left limbs, and two cases of fractures and injuries to face sustained through the snapping of an ear.

At Kam Tin, Dr. C. W. Lam of Un Long successfully attended a difficult Maternity Case. It is also reported that "Burning" persists as a counter-irritant for infantile ailments.

Sergeant Whitley stated that from enquiries it was revealed that the defendant had been living in Hoping City since his banishment and about a month ago his son disappeared. The boy was seen with a friend in Hong Kong about three weeks ago.

It seems that the boy had come down to look for his mother. The man took the boy with him, and wrote to defendant asking him to send someone to fetch the boy. The Inspector General of Police wished to stress the fact that it was not necessary for the defendant himself to have come to Hong Kong.

Mr. Schofield remarked that the defendant's excuse was a good one, but he was not compelled to return, and under the circumstances sentenced him to two months' hard labour, and directed that the boy remain with defendant's friend.

DORLAND HALL EXHIBITION

All About Book And Authors

Commencing from yesterday and until November 18, Dorland Hall, London, will be the venue of a novel Book Exhibition held under the aegis of the National Book Council of the "Sunday Times."

This is a really comprehensive exhibition, and while it is described as a Book Exhibition, will not be simply an exhibition of books. Although it will contain much to please the connoisseur it has been planned for everyone who finds pleasure in books, who cares to know how they are made and distributed, how their authors write and look and speak.

NEW BOOKS

One complete floor will be devoted to a display of the newest books, the pick of the autumn publishing season, representing nearly a hundred publishers. Visitors will be able to examine and handle the volumes freely, and books will be sold from the stands when desired.

LIVING BOOKS

This modern library will consist of books selected by distinguished men and women with expert knowledge of the subjects chosen—subjects which range from Gardening, Eating and Drinking, to the wider realms of Travel and The World To-day.

MAKING OF A BOOK

Several phases of the printing and binding of books will be illustrated by working machinery, and there will be a practical demonstration of hand binding.

TALKS BY AUTHORS

Every day there will be talks by well-known authors in the Lecture Hall within the Exhibition. Three talks daily, at 12, 3.30 and 6.30.

This is the third of the "Sunday Times" Book Exhibitions. The first was held at Sunderland House in November 1933, and it at once became apparent that the Book Exhibition public was a large and enthusiastic one. Accordingly a second exhibition, on a larger scale, was organized in November 1934, this time at Grosvenor House. This again proved an unquestionable success.

In contemplating a third exhibition the "Sunday Times" anticipated (correctly as it proved) the need for even wider scope. They accordingly accepted the co-operation of a committee appointed by the National Book Council, secured the services of the Council's Secretary and staff and of Mr. Desmond Flower.

There were no New York quotations last night as the markets were closed.

NANKING EMISSARIES IN CANTON

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 5.

Mr. Tai Chi-tao, President of the Examination Yuan, and Mr. Ma Chao-chun, Mayor of Nanking, who arrived here yesterday afternoon by General Chiang Kai-shek's private Junker plane called on members of the South-west Political Council this morning and discussed with them the general political situation.

It is understood that Nanking wants to solicit Canton's support in foreign relations and national problems in view of the critical conditions confronting North China. General Chiang Kai-shek is most anxious to reach an understanding with the South-west.

owing to his precarious position and hopes to achieve some definite measures through Messrs. Tai and Ma. It is said that General Chiang is in favour of retaining the South-west Political Council and the Kuomintang South-west Executive Committee. Generals Chen Tsai-tong and Li Chung-jen are requested to go to Nanking in order to discuss with Generals Chiang Kai-shek, Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yu-hsiang national affairs and Sino-Japanese relations.

HONORARY SURGEON TO THE KING

SIR JOHN SIMON ON HOME ELECTION

Democracy And The Constitution

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18.

Sir John Simon has written the following letter to Sir Alfred Mowat, President of the Spen Valley Liberal Association:—

October 16, 1935.

My dear Mowat.—The decision whether there shall be an immediate General Election and, if so, on what date the country shall go to the polls, rests with the Prime Minister, and until the Prime Minister has decided, and has announced his decision, all anticipations are without authority. But the mere suggestion that an early General Election is likely has thrown various sections of the Opposition into a paroxysm of protest, and accusations are already being bandied about that such a step would be "indefensible" and "against the public interest." Such an attitude seems to me unjustified, and I should like to make a few remarks about it, without in any way pretending to forecast what the Prime Minister's decision may be.

In the first place, the present House of Commons has already lived through four-fifths of its maximum life. Constitutional precedent and practical necessity would not in any case justify the postponement of a General Election to the very end of the Parliamentary term, for that would run the risk of a situation suddenly arising which made the Dissolution most inadvisable at a moment when it could not legally be postponed.

Everybody, therefore, has contemplated that, at latest, the General Election would take place in the early months of next year. It is manifest that no question of constitutional principle arises as between the late months of this year and the early months of next. Indeed, the time-table for the preparation of Estimates of next year's expenditure has usually made the autumn a more convenient time for a General Election than the early spring.

DOMESTIC POLICY

Secondly, so far as domestic policy is concerned, one can only stand amazed at the protests of those who have been criticizing, and occasionally seeking to censure, the Government for a long time past. The official Opposition is never tired of protesting against the policy of the National Government, and of claiming that there is some rival policy already worked out in detail by the Labour Party, which the country is longing to adopt.

The minority of Liberal members who have gone into opposition to the Government justify this course largely by claiming that the National Government is no longer discharging the mandate given to it at the last election, and is adopting policies which the country, if it were consulted, would disapprove. So far as our domestic affairs are concerned, therefore, there is nothing in this outcry.

INTERNATIONAL POLICY

But in the third place we must examine the Opposition's complaint from the point of view of international policy. This is the real ground upon which any serious comment is based, and I wish to examine the comment in the fairest spirit.

What is said is that members of Parliament who in general oppose the Government are prepared to support the Government in the course which this country is taking as a member of the League of Nations at Geneva, and that for this reason an immediate General Election is "unnecessary." It is further contended that a Dissolution "at the height of a grave international crisis" is "indefensible" (I quote the words of the statement issued after a meeting of Opposition Liberals yesterday).

But where is the authority for saying that we are at the height of a grave international crisis? It is true, indeed, that the situation which is being handled at Geneva is most grave and anxious, but the developments in that situation will probably extend over a considerable space of time, and it is quite impossible for anyone to assert that by waiting a month or two the sky will be cleared.

As for the proposition that the people of this country need not be consulted because Opposition M.P.s at the moment show an unusual

ROYAL VISIT TO GLASGOW

Duke Of Kent To Open Scots Motor Show

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

"The Bulletin" learns that the Duke of Kent is to visit Glasgow on the afternoon of Friday, November 15, and perform the ceremony of opening the Scottish Motor Show in the Kelvin Hall.

The last occasion on which a member of the royal family carried out a similar engagement was in 1927, when the Prince of Wales declared the motor show open.

THE TRUMPET CALL OF PEACE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 18.

Well done, Eden and Hoare! Through you the voice of England spoke in trumpet tones that rang to the world's end, not in a blast of war but in a nobler cause, the cause of peace and brotherhood of man.

The nations heard and answered to the call. They did not quail before the Italian tyrant's brandished sword. Now dripping with blood, the Scripture says: Blessed are the peacemakers; surely we say: Blessed is England, blest the nations met in solemn conclave by Geneva's shore.

J. G. FRAZER.

measure of agreement with the Government, this surely is a most remarkable doctrine in the mouth of those who preach it. It is not only the constituents of Opposition members who would be consulted; it is constituents of Government members too. It may be that the Prime Minister will decide to consult the whole country, for it is the view of the mass of citizens in this free democracy rather than of politicians elected to Parliament four years ago which really matters.

It may be that the Prime Minister will consider that renewed authority, drawn directly from the free expression of the judgment of the whole British people, will be of material weight in the handling of the international problem. It may be that he will reach the conclusion that, in order to continue to carry the burden which the work of government imposes, it would be as well as know where the country actually stands and whom it is prepared to trust. Certainly, no one with the smallest pretensions to be either a democrat or a constitutionalist could condemn such a decision as contrary to the rights of our democracy or to the spirit of our constitution.

I have made it plain that I am not in any way anticipating a decision, which so far as I know has not yet been made. But I am concerned to dissipate a fallacy which appears to be propagated from certain quarters as a means of stirring up feeling in advance against the Government.

And all I have to say in conclusion is—forewarned is forearmed, so lose no time and prepare for what may come.—Yours very sincerely, John Simon.
